FOUL MURDER.

Jacob Studt Kills His Former Employer, Charles Wuensch.

He Discharges a Shot Gun Full in His Face.

Then Places the Gun Against His Own Abdomen and Fires.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN A NEW BUILDING AT 3438 OREGON AVENUE.

Studt Lived Long Enough to Be Removed to the Hospital, Suffering Awful Agony—His Wife Stood Over Him Before His Removal and Said That, Since He Had Committed So Terrible a Crime She Hoped He Would Die—What Led to the Shooting.

Jacob Studt, a carpenter of 2817 Winnebago street, shot and killed Charles Wuensch, also a carpenter, of 2727 Miami street, shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, and then shot himself in the stomach. Studt died at 12:45 p. m. The double crime was committed with an old double-barreled shot-gun. The only cause that can be assigned for the deed is that last week Wuensch discharged Studt, owing to his drinking habits.

Wuensch was a well-to-do German carpenter and contractor. He was building for himself a nice two-story brick dwelling at 3438 Oregon avenue. Studt worked for him some days last week, but owing to his unsteady habits he was let out.

About 8 o'clock this morning he came to the new building. Wuensch and a carpenter named Emil Sceumann of 3610 Iowa avenue were already at work, but according to the latter there were no words between the two men. Studt hung around for a short time and then went away. A little later he entered Fred Goodgezell's saloon, over which Wuensch lived with his wife and two children.

He took a seat at a table, but drank nothing, for he had no money.

"Why aren't you working to-day?" the saloonkeeper asked him.

"The bricklayers haven't the upper stones ready for the scantling yet," he replied.

Goodgezell looked out of the window and saw that he was lying, but said nothing. About 10 o'clock Studt left the place apparently in his ordinary frame of mind. He had said nothing to indicate that he contemplated murder.

GOT THE SHOT-GUN.

From the saloon Studt went over to the house of Gus Lobeck, 2226 Keokuk street. Some time ago he had loaned Gus his shot-gun. He did not find him at home, however, so he asked the sister for it, saying that he was going to clean it up and go shooting. She gave it to him unsuspectingly and he went away.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the man carrying the gun by his side appeared at the new building where his intended victim was working. He walked up the board incline to the floor above the basement and stood watching Sceumann and Wuensch at their work. Andrew Vette, a laborer, passed by and saw him holding the gun at his side and gazing about in an aimless sort of way. He thought nothing of it and passed on.

Wuensch and his assistant were working up stairs. Only the skeleton of the second floor had been laid, and one standing below could look up through the scantling and see what was going on. Wuensch was on a scaffolding on the north side arranging some brick work, while Sceumann was across on the other side.

The latter says he heard no words, only the report of a gun. He looked around. Wuensch was lying with his face and neck all bloody on the scaffolding. Down below stood Studt looking up at the result of his work. Sceumann was paralyzed with fear. He saw without stirring the murderer turn his gun stock down, fasten it between two blocks of wood and place the barrel to the pit of his stomach. Then he saw him lean over and with his finger pull the trigger.

There was another report, and Studt fell backward with a groan, his entrails scattering over the rough board and hanging loose from his abdomen. And still Sceumann stood paralyzed above him.

There has been a good deal of blasting in this neighborhood recently, and those about took the first shot for a blast. When the second one came, however, they knew something had happened.

J. T. Foster, who lives just across the street from the scene of the crime, and Mike Mummert, a contractor, working on an adjoining building, rushed into the place to see what was the matter.

Studt was groaning in his agony, while Wuensch was just expiring. Neither of the men spoke at all. Foster rushed out and found Officers R. J. Smith and Hunicke. They telephoned to the Fifth District that a murder had been committed and turned in a call for an ambulance. One shortly arrived from the City Hospital in charge of Dr. Epstein. The physician examined the man and saw that the only hope was to rush him straight to the hospital and perform laparotomy on him. His intestines were pushed back as best they might be and he was taken away but he was beyond human aid and died shortly after reaching the hospital.

MRS. STUDT'S CALMNESS.

When the news of the shooting spread about the neighborhood a great crowd gathered around the partially completed building and swarmed in over the insecure floor to the great danger of their life and limbs. Among the first to appear was Mrs. Studt. She appeared to take the matter calmly and looked at her husband as he tossed and groaned in pain in a rather indifferent way. She left before the ambulance carried him off and told a woman that now that he had committed such a deed she hoped he would die.

Officer Smith carried the terrible news over to Wuensch's home. The wife was not there, but his two daughters, aged 18 and 14, came flying over to the scene. The men about tried to keep them from seeing their father, but they struggled and fought until they gained their point, and looked upon the bloody and almost unrecognizable face of their dead parent as he lay stretched out on his back. Then they led them away.

Capt. Keeble and Sergt. Gregory arrived in a few minutes and began the official investigation. In all the crowd Sceumann was the only man who could tell them anything about the tragedy. He said he did not hear anyone speak or move until the shot, but Wuensch must have become aware of Studt's presence and turned around to face him, for he received the charge of shot full in the face, as though he had been bending over and looking down at the man below.

WUENSCH'S BODY REMOVED.

The dead-wagon was summoned under Capt. Keeble's order and Wuensch's body removed to the Morgue. The wife will have to go there to see it, for she did not return from her trip down town until after the corpse was taken away.

Wuensch was a sober, industrious man who had amassed a tidy little sum. He was born in Germany and was 45 years old. Studt had not so good a reputation, owing to his drinking habits. He was also born in Germany, was 46 years old, and had two daughters, aged 18 and 20 years.

Those who know both men say they can hardly believe that Studt would commit such a crime when he was sober, as he was, according to Saloon-keeper Goodgezell's testimony. He was always quiet and peaceable, but this crime must have been premeditated for some hours at least. Stutd was a well-educated man, and had been in the country a good many years.

No trace of any other motive for the deed than the discharge could be discovered. Wuensch's daughters say that their father never had any trouble with the man, except this.

ARRESTED AND IDENTIIFIED

James Morrissey Held for the Shooting of Officer James Hanlon.

Detectives Cavan and Sullivan of the Fourth District this morning arrested James Morrissey, alias Candy Alley, a noted police character, on suspicion of being implicated in the attempted robbery of William Best and the shooting of Officer James Hanlon who pursued them Saturday night last. When Officer Hanlon saw Morrissey he identified him positively as the man who did the shooting. James Gannon and Joe McNamara, also under arrest at the Fourth District, have been identified as companions of Morrissey on this occasion. Best was held up by three men at Tenth and Mullanphy streets, but he raised an outcry and Officer Hanlon coming on the scene chased the trio. During the pursuit one of the fugitives turned and fired on the officer, the bullet penetrating to his breast bone, where it spent its force and left only an abrasion of the skin. Gannon was only recently released on bond on a charge of highway robbery.

SUDA EXONERATED.

The Inquest on Martin—Previous Escapade of the Dead Man.

Coroner Frank held the inquest to-day on the remains of Andrew Martin, the young man who died at St. Mary's Infirmary last Saturday from the effects of a gunshot wound in the right hip received at the hands of Frank Suda. Martin was shot while intoxicated and disturbing the peace of Ella Suda, sister of the shooter, at the grading camp on Duncan, near Newstead avenue, last Wednesday afternoon.

At the inquest to-day Ella Suda and her mother made a corroborative statement. They said that Martin had insulted the girl while he was passing in a buggy, and that he afterwards got out of the buggy, came back to where she was standing, and, after exchanging a few words seized her by the throat and was choking her. At this juncture Ella claims her brother came up and fired the shot from the shot-gun. The evidence of all the witnesses went to show that young Suda had acted in defense of his sister, and the Coroner's jury took the same view of it. They brought in a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death from septicæmia, the result of a gun-shot wound of the thigh, inflicted by a charge of a shot fired from a gun in the hands of Frank Suda, and that Suda was justified in his act. The prisoner was released at once.

Andrew Martin was 21 years old, single, and lived in a tent at the same grading as the Suda family.

He will be remembered in connection with the alleged enticement of Bertha Wedber, the 16-year-old daughter of a well-to-do dry goods merchant whose place of business and residence was at 3337 Market street, on June 16, 1891. Miss Webber and her younger sister, Ida were, it is said, infatuated with Martin and his young brother John. They lived in the same neighborhood. After Andrew is said to have disappeared with Bertha, his brother left with Ida, and both brothers were arrested a few days after this alleged escapade. Andrew was indicted, but his brother was released on account of his youth. The former was tried twice on the charge in the Criminal Court, and in each case the jury disagreed and the case was continued generally as a last resort.

Injured While Throwing a Switch.

Abe Bisch, a brakeman on the Iron Mountain Road, in stepping off of the steps of a coach at Robert avenue at 5:45 o'clock this morning to throw a switch, fell and broke his left arm at the elbow. He is 50 years old, married, and lives at 6927 Pennsylvania avenue. The arm was set by Dr. Volker of 7027 South Broadway, who stated that the arm on getting well would most likely be stiff.

Arrested for Burglary.

Charles Golden was found coming out of Herman Duing's saloon, at 823 Clark avenue, at 12:10 o'clock this morning by Officer McGlynn, who placed him under arrest. An examination of the place showed that the glass in the front door was broken, and that what change had been left in the cash register was gone. When searched 65 cents in nickels and dimes were found on Golden, who was locked up on a charge of burglary and larceny.

THE WEATHER.

Missourians May Look for Fair and Warmer Conditions.

▶ For Missouri and Southern Illinois: Fair, but with increasing cloudiness; warmer.

□ The temperature is rising slowly from the Mississippi Valley westward. Cloudiness is increasing in the northwest and will increase in this vicinity to-night and to-morrow, but rain in this vicinity before Tuesday night is hardly probable.

The river reached its crest of 20.1 feet yesterday and will now decline at a rate of nearly two feet per day, reaching about 13 feet by Friday.

For Missouri: Generally fair, followed by slightly warmer Tuesday morning; southerly winds.

OUT OF PLACE.

Feminine Spectators Ordered From the Washington Criminal Court.

Not Permitted to Hear the Evidence in the Pollard-Breckinridge Case.

THE TRIAL REOPENS WITH A CONTROVERSY OVER DEPOSITIONS.

Some of Those Taken From Plaintiff in Kentucky Held by the Defense to Be Irregular—The Distinguished Defendant Greatly Agitated Over the Point at Issue—Appearance of the Plaintiff—Her Manner and Costume.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—Refreshed by two days of consultation and planning, the Pollard-Breckinridge legal forces bristle with law books and portentous looking documents this morning as they arrayed themselves along the two rows of desks in the Criminal Court room. Jurors, too, were smiling with just cause, for directly across the court room and facing them sat a group of fashionable young women, backed by a row of solemn matrons, all brought thither by curiosity, which, more than hope, springs eternal in the feminine breast.

Expectation fairly beamed from beneath their bonnets, to be but five minutes deferred, for that space after the appointed hour for court convening entered Miss Pollard, demure and with downcast eyes, wrapped in her long black cloak, the Congressman defendant and his satchel of documents following so closely after that the two parties seemed to have come together.

MISS POLLARD'S COSTUME.

Miss Pollard was clad completely in black, from head to feet, without one touch of white or of color to relieve the somberness of her attire. She looked thin and careworn, and her rather plain features were set in a serious way. The removal of the fair plaintiff's long black outer wrap revealed a jacket closely fitting, with a double row of buttons, puffed sleeves and collar fastened high about the slender neck, with no appearance of lace or linen. Her gloves were of black undressed kid, disappearing under the sleeves of her coat. Her hair was dressed with nun-like severity of plainness and in the same style of that of the sister who accompanied her.

It was brought over smoothly from the parting line to the ears, braided and arranged in a coil low at the back, the size of the mass showing the thickness and luxuriant growth of her tresses. She wore a small toque of velvet, without ornament, except a small bow at the front from the rear, black ribbons were drawn down and tied under the chin. Her face was hardly hidden at all by a thin dotted vail.

Miss Pollard, as said, is not what would be designated a pretty woman. Her face is thin, her mouth too wide for beauty, but with straightness of the line, the thinness of the lips, combined with the squareness of the chin, suggesting freely the determined character of the woman who has instituted this struggle against such powerful influences. Her nose is decidedly retrousse, her eyes darker than her hair and the only beauty of her face. Her forehead is low and fair, her complexion is clear and healthy looking, bearing no evidences of artificial aids to beauty.

LADY SPECTATORS ORDERED OUT.

Judge Bradley leaned his handsome head back in his padded leather chair, the roll of jurors was called and was no sooner finished than the Judge remarked:

"Mr. Marshal, I wish you would request these ladies to vacate the seats unless they are witnesses in the case."

Thereupon Marshal Wilson's portly form loomed up before the women, waving them out. They went with clouds of disappointment overspreading their faces and such a babbling of anger that the Judge was obliged to rap sharply for order.

Few spectators were left after the exodus, but among them were a half-dozen of the defendant's fellow members of Congress.

First in the proceedings Attorney Carlisle, for Miss Pollard, represented to the court that the four mysterious volumes of Washington Irving, taken from the Cincinnati convent and ordered on Friday to be produced, had been filed with the clerk of the court in a sealed package with the indorsement that they were sealed by agreement of counsel to be opened under the direction of the court.

THE FIRST CONTROVERSY.

This reopened the controversy over the identification of the volumes, Mr. Butterworth contending that closer description by the plaintiff was absolutely necessary and declaring that the suggestion of sealing them had been made by Miss Pollard's counsel.

Mr. Wilson said that the understanding was that the books should be delivered sealed as depositions were, but it had never been contemplated that they should remain sealed.

"If there was any agreement to have these books sealed," said Judge Bradley, "I was not a party to it."

Thereupon ex-Congressman Butterworth, who is a Quaker and refers to his opponents as "Brother Wilson" and "Brother Carlisle," protested that if Miss Pollard had bought the books for the convent she must be able to stand up here and describe those books, "or sit here and do it," replied Mr. Wilson, tartly, in which ultimatum he was sustained by the Judge, after more sparring, in which young Attorney Johnson took part, combatting the insinuation that his client's course had not been straightforward respecting the volumes, and Miss Pollard's black eyes snapped triumphantly.

DEPOSITIONS OBJECTED TO.

Then Gen. Butterworth gave notice of objection to be made to certain depositions which, he said, had been taken improperly. Mr. Wilson was proceeding to put in a deposition when Col. Breckinridge suavely requested to be shown it, and told his lawyers to object, because it was written neither in the hand of the deponent nor of the Justice of the Peace.

Mr. Breckinridge became visibly excited and nervous over the matter. This first deposition offered in the case was by Sarah Gess. Mr. Butterworth raised the objection that no notice of its being taken had been served upon the defendant. Considerable time was consumed in consultation before Col. Breckinridge's law partner, John L. Shelby of Lexington, Ky., a scholarly young man, with blond moustache and mild, blue eyes, rehearsed the objections to the deposition. Notice, he said, had been served upon attorneys who had represented Col. Breckinridge in some of the preliminaries and who, according to correspondence read, protested that they were not attorneys of record, nor connected with the courts of the District of Columbia, having appeared for the swearing of witnesses at the request of Col. Breckinridge's son. Notice had been served upon Mr. Shelby also, and he represented that he had filed notice with the officers before whom the depositions were to be taken, stating that he was not an attorney of record and had been merely empowered to act for Col. Breckinridge in the preliminaries. In his statement to the Court, he urged that the law required notice to be served only on the defendant or his attorneys of record. He made the further point that there was nothing to show that the law directing that depositions shall be reduced to writing by the deponents or the officer before whom they are taken, had been complied with.

Francis testified to having seen evidences of a more than paternal interest on the part of Col. Breckinridge for the plaintiff.

Dr. Tabor Johnson, who testified that he had attended Miss Pollard through an illness in May, 1893, identified certain letters and telegrams signed with the name of W. C. P. Breckinridge that indicated a knowledge of the nature of Miss Pollard's illness.

The doctor could not swear whether that illness was brought on by criminal practice. It might be produced by excitement or stress of mind. The patient seemed nervous, worried and excited.

A female physician, Mary Parsons, testified that in 1888 she had attended Miss Pollard at the convent on Massachusetts avenue in Washington, and in Second street, S. W. The latter place had been secured by the witness for Miss Pollard, and a male child had been born, which was placed in an asylum.

"Did you ever see the child afterwards?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"I did."

"Who was present?"

"The mother of the child."

MISS POLLARD FAINTS.

An exciting scene followed the answer. Every ear in the court heard a muffled sobbing, which came from Miss Pollard, and looking toward her the young woman was seen with her head bowed almost to her lap, shaking convulsively. The two friends from the House of Refuge, who have been her constant attendants, bent over the young woman, but her emotion could not be subdued. Finally they were compelled to take her from the room, half leading and half carrying her, while a sympathetic silence was over the room. Just as she stepped through the doorway, Miss Pollard fell forward fainting, and would have touched the floor had not a stalwart colored bailiff sprung forward to grasp her in his strong arms.

Col. Breckinridge averted his face and whispered with his attorney.

As the door of the courtroom closed upon the fainting woman, Mr. Wilson resumed his examination, asking what became of the child.

"The child died," was the answer.

"Was any communication made to you by Miss Pollard as to who was the father of the child?"

Col. Breckenridge leaned forward, breaking in eagerly: "I object to that."

His attorneys chorused the objection.

"State the objection," said the Judge.

Mr. Wilson said that the question had been carefully guarded. The objection was admitted and after more cross-fire, Dr. Parsons said:

"I called upon Col. Breckinridge at his residence on M street with a bill to Miss Pollard for my services. He forwarded the payment of the bill to me."

Another objection raised was that the depositions had been forwarded from Kentucky to the court neither by mail nor by messenger, but by express, whereas the law prescribes that they be forwarded by mail. Notice had been given that some depositions were to be taken only last Tuesday, as the attorney was about to leave for Washington for the trial, and when it would have been impossible for the defendant to travel from Washington to Kentucky and be present in time for the taking of the depositions, or, if he went there, to have returned to Washington for the beginning of the trial Thursday.

Attorney Carlisle in his reply accused Mr. Shelby of lack of frankness in failing to mention that notice had really been served on him on the 3d day of March, but that on account of the defendant's obstructions the taking of depositions necessarily had been postponed to March 7.

MISS POLLARD'S SIDE.

Some affidavits regarding the taking of the depositions in Lexington were read by Miss Pollard's attorney, showing that several notaries of Lexington had refused to take the depositions for various reasons, one making the excuse that he did not care to be mixed up in the case, and that his brother was an applicant for a federal position and would incur the enmity of Col. Breckinridge and his friends by any connection of the family with the case. From an affidavit by Attorney Bullock, who had represented Miss Pollard in Kentucky, it appeared that her lawyers had found it necessary to go to the State capital at Frankfort and procure a commission and bondsmen for one McLaughlin to officiate as notary public, before the depositions could be taken. Mr. Shelby had once answered, said Mr. Carlisle, that he was instructed by Col. Breckinridge not to accept service in the case. "He was not leaving for Washington when notice was served on him, March 3," Mr. Carlisle continued, "although he was leaving for Washington, March 6, and although he protested then that he was not an attorney of record in the case, he is here now and arguing this motion."

Col. Breckinridge had never been present when depositions were taken, but had several attorneys representing him there in Kentucky, among them his partner, Mr. Shelby Penrose, and said that if there was to be any question of fact the defendant would like an opportunity to file affidavits concerning it.

A WITNESS FOR PLAINTIFF.

The matter was for the time deferred and a witness for Miss Pollard was called, a fashionably dressed, smooth faced, bespectacled young man, who gave his name as Claude De la Roche, France, first cousin of Ward McAllister and nephew of the Marquis De la Roche, Chamberlain to the Pope," announcing that his residence was in New York but that most of his time was spent in Europe. He had known Miss Pollard in Washington in 1883, when she lived at 25 Lafayette Square and 1819 H street. He had been a visitor at the latter place two or three times a week, always seeing Miss Pollard there, and frequently Col. Breckinridge with her, in the drawing-room.

UNION DEPOT POST-OFFICE.

St. Louis Will Have the First One in the United States.

Postmaster Harlow has written a letter to the Postal Committee of the Merchants' Exchange, in which he directs attention to a project which he has already started for the establishment of a branch post-office in the new Union Depot. Maj. Harlow states that he proposed the plan to the Committee of Construction two years or more ago, and that necessary space for such a branch Post-office was reserved in the public vestibule adjacent to the ticket offices. The idea was approved by the First and Second Assistant Postmaster-Generals, on their visit to this city about the time the new Union Depot was begun. Maj. Harlow's plan is for a financial station, for the issuance and payment of money orders, receipt and delivery of registered letters, sale of stamps and stamped envelopes and delivery of general mails both to travelers and residents. Maj. Harlow stated in his letter that he had already brought the matter to the attention of the Post-office Department, requesting early action and provision for the necessary expenditures in the annual aggregration, to be made up July 1, but he thought a little urging on the part of the Merchants' Exchange might have a good effect. He makes the point that as St. Louis is to have the finest Union Depot in the country, it will not be amiss for her to have the first depot post-office.

The Postal Committee of the Merchants' Exchange falls in with the suggestion and has written a letter to Congressman Cobb, urging him to take the matter up with the Postal Department and try to get the money necessary for the construction of the office into the annual appropriation bill. It is stated, for Mr. Cobb's guidance, that while St. Louis pays to the Government a net revenue of $1,000,000 a year, her percentage of expense is among the very lowest of all the large post-offices of the United States. The Committee's letter is signed by E. A. Pomeroy, P. M. Hanson, N. L. Moffitt, G. O. Kalb, Henry C. Harstick, T. C. Taylor and Charles E. Flack.

Ryan's Sentence Affirmed.

Motions for a new trial and in arrest were overruled by Judge Edmunds to-day in the case of Martin Ryan, who was found guilty last week in the Criminal Court of attempting to vote twice at the last election and fined $100. The sentence was then affirmed by the court.

INTO OFFICE.

Ex-Senator White Becomes Supreme Court Justice.

The Ceremony of Induction Was Brief But Very Impressive.

A CROWDED COURT-ROOM WITNESSED THE TAKING OF THE OATH.

Some Inside Facts Explaining the Cause of the Louisianian's Long Delay in Qualifying for the Supreme Bench—It Was all on Account of His Interest in Sugar—Once He Meant to Resign.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—The induction into office of the new Associate Justice, ex-Senator White of Louisiana, attracted a large attendance to the Supreme Court room to-day as the ceremony always does. There has been an unusually large number of opportunities to witness it in the last few years. Not for many years have there been so many vacancies and consequent induction of superiors to seats on the bench in so short a period as in the last and present Administrations. Justices Brewer, Brown, Shiras and Jackson have all taken their seats since President Cleveland's former term of office. The ceremony of the induction of Justice White was very simple, but impressive.

Justice White had taken advantage of the slight delay in taking his seat after his appointment to provide himself with his own robe of office, and did not have to borrow a robe, as most of his associates have done.

As the hour of noon approached there was no standing room to be had in the court-room, and the corridor outside was filled with the disappointed ones. A large number of distinguished men were in the court-room. The seats to the left of the bench were reserved for the ladies of the Supreme Court and their guests.

Among those who occupied them were Miss White, sister of the new Justice; Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. Field, Mrs. Harlan, Mrs. Shiras, Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Carlisle, Mrs. Bissell, Miss Strong, Mrs. Prouty and a large number of others.

Senator Vilas, between whom and Senator White a cordial intimacy has existed, was a spectator, as were also Senator White of California, Stewart, Lindsay and Mitchell of Oregon and quite a number of members of the House.

The cermony of installation was soon over. The Court filed into the room and took their places, all being present but Justice Jackson, who is still detained in the South by illness. The new Justice had previously been sworn in by the Chief Justice in the Clerk's office. when the Court had been seated and opened up with the usual announcement, Chief Justice Fuller announced that Justice White was present and ready to take the oath of office. The candidate was seated just behind Clerk McKenney, who thereupon arose and read the commission signed by the President. Justice White then arose and read the oath of office in a deliberate manner and with clearness and distinctness, every one in the court room standing. The quiet in the court room was then broken by the rustle of garments as everyone was reseated, and while Justice White passed around behind the bench to the left hand and where Justice Shiras, his neighbor on the bench, shook hands with him.

CAUSE OF WHITE'S DELAY.

Justice White's long delay in qualifying for his new position is still the subject of much comment here, all of it unfavorable to him, and some of it, based on recent information entirely trustworthy, severe on the President.

As this story goes, when Mr. White accepted the tender of the place on the bench, he called the President's attention to the fact that the tariff bill was then undergoing revision by the Senate, and that as a Senator from Louisiana he was deeply interested in the proposition to put a tax on sugar, and charged therewith with a great responsibility. He represented it as a matter of life or death with his people, and declared that they expected him to exert his influence to the fullest, and utilize all his experience acquired in the Senate towards securing them what they wanted. He explained to the President fully what he had been doing, and said that if he accepted the judgship he would feel at liberty to remain in the Senate until the Finance Committee had agreed upon its report.

The President saw no difficulty about Mr. White taking this course. The Supreme Court was not in session, and would not be for a fortnight, and if Mr. White meanwhile, by counsel or other proper means, could assist in the solution of the difficulty about the tariff bill, well and good. That was before the caucus had been thought of, and at a time when Mr. White in reality was only taking the part of a counselor for his people.

By the end of that week, however, the situation became so threatening and so complicated that a caucus was called and, on the Monday following, the Democratic Senators came together in a state of no little excitement to discuss the tariff bill. Sugar was the chief subject of contention, and every consideration of precedence ought to have prevailed with Mr. White to keep him out of what promised to be so lively a family row. His colleague, Mr. Caffery, a determined and an aggressive man, had already carried matters so far that Mr. White ought to have known that he could not take any but an advanced stand about sugar. The President had left town the day before for the Dismal Swamp, and Mr. White, by a strange sort of fate, plunged after him into a worse quagmire. He did not hesitate, but went into the caucus, became involved at once in an angry squabble with nearly everybody present, imperiled the cause of sugar until it became almost impossible even for Mr. McCaffery to save the day, and retired at the close of the proceedings the most thoroughly disliked public man in Washington. He went into the caucus enveloped in everybody's good will, but came out stripped of it all, and an object of angry wonder.

IN A FRAME OF MIND.

For a few days following Mr. White was in a highly unjudicial frame of mind. He was so angry in fact that he went to bed with a slight rise of fever and talked to friends as if the Supreme bench did not possess overpowering attractions for him. He seemed anxious for the President to return, and there are those who believe that had the President been in town then Mr. White from the depths of his disgust and impatience would have declined the Judgeship. He insisted that the President was friendly to the sugar tax and had virtually indorsed the course that he (White) had pursued by assenting to his declared purpose to remain in the Senate until the question was settled in committee.

But despite of all this explanation, Mr. White's course is pronounced an irremediable blunder, and the President's part in it, however slight, exceedingly regrettable. It is held that the President should not have permitted Mr. White to hold his commission as Senator a day after his nomination as Associate Justice has been confirmed, knowing that the quarrel over the tariff was an ugly one, and that Mr. White's part in it was, and would necessarily remain, that of a man with a personal financial interest in the result.

The change in Louisiana's representation in the Senate occasions a renewal of the talk about Ambassador Eustis. Mr. Eustis is not only the most brilliant of Louisianians, but he has had more experience in public affairs than any other man from that State now in office. It is reported that a feeling is growing among his people to ask him to return home and again accept a commission as Senator. They have just had so close a call in legislative matters here that the importance of having their interests committed to the ablest hands to be commanded is borne in upon them most forcibly. It is not known how Mr. Eustis would act in such circumstances. He is agreeably situated at present, knows Paris like a native, has a taste for diplomacy and great talent for the work. But it is considered not unlikely that having served with such distinction in the Senate he would not refuse another term in that body if his people demanded it. The election takes place in May, when two Senators are to be chosen. Louisianians here say that Eustis and Caffery would make the strongest team in sight.

MILLIONS FOR THE INDIANS.

Some Sensible Features of the Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—The Indian appropriation bill is likely to be reported this week. Chairman Holman of the committee having it in charge expects that the total appropriation will be $1,000,000 less than that of last year, which will make the bill a trifle above $6,000,000. This saving has been made against rather spirited opposition from Representative Wilson of Washington and other members of the committee, who feel satisfied that the bill will be brought up to the mark of former bills when the measure gets before the House.

In cutting down the allowances Mr. Holman has given attention to many of the branches into which the Indian service is divided. There is a reduction on the item for Indian schools. This is not based on any opposition to the Indian school system, but is made by cutting down the allowances for such schools as do not have their full quota of pupils.

Efforts have also been made to cut down the expense of Indian agencies by consolidating them. It has been urged that in some States having two or three agencies, the work could be better done at a central agency. This consolidation is being opposed in the committee on the ground that the value of the agents will be lessened if they were given roving commissions to go around a State from agency to agency, with a divided responsibility. Those who oppose the change say that the Indian agency system has been rid of its former taint of irregularity and corruption and has been brought to such a stage of efficiency that it should not now be disturbed by experiments in consolidation. In case the consolidations are affected in the forthcoming bill, they will be vigorously resisted on the floor of the House of Representatives from the States where the Indians live.

Another line of proposed reduction is on the special agents of the Indian Bureau and the Interior Department, who form a sort of secret service in the Indian system. Mr. Holman thinks there are too many of these special agents, and he urges a material reduction in the force. This has been opposed, however, on the ground that the rapid absorption of Indian lands by the Government and the steady encroachments of the whites on the Indians makes it particularly important that the special agents should be kept up to their present number. They have been termed "the eyes of the department" by one of the members of the committee, as their duty is to watch all transactions between the Government and the Indians and to keep the Washington authorities informed. They are the mediums of overcoming frauds against the Indians or against the Government.

A plan of curtailing expense which meets with general favor in the committee is that of the consolidation of warehouses and supply depots for Indian rations and supplies. At present there is an extensive warehouse and plant at New York, which makes it necessary to store goods far from the Indian country. Chicago will be made the main and only depot of supplies, as it is so located as to take advantage of the prevailing market rates and is also easy of access to the Indian country.

RICKABY ACQUITTED.

Mr. Zachritz's Assistant Refuses to Ask the Jail Guard's Conviction.

Jail Guard James Rickaby, charged with complicity in the attempt made by train robber Marion Hedgepeth to escape from jail, was acquitted this morning.

When the case was called Orrick Bishop, Assistant to the Circuit Attorney, offered to enter a nolle prosequi, but his offer was rejected by Attorney Charles Nolan for the defense. A jury was called and Mr. Bishop made a statement of the case to them, referring to Rickaby in complimentary terms, and stating that he would not ask for the conviction of a dog on such evidence as he could present in the case. He could not fathom the motives which had led the Grand-jury to return an indictment.

The jury at once returned a verdict of not guilty.

Some criticism was expressed at the action of Attorney Bishop in not allowing the trial to proceed in the usual manner, thus making public the nature of the evidence in the case.

DISQUALIFIED EDMUNDS.

Unexpected Turn in an Election Fraud Case.

A case with some peculiar features came up in the Criminal Court to-day. Anton Meyer, Thomas and Herman F. Jobusch were on the docket, on a charge of changing election returns. Meyer and Alton were clerks at the Twentieth Precinct in the Fifth Ward at the April election of last year, and Jobusch was a judge at the same precinct.

All three were indicted together. When the case was called both sides announced themselves ready. The State decided to try Alton first, he having taken a severance when he claimed that he was not ready. Judge Edmunds did not feel like entertaining a plea of this nature from a man who had just announced that he was ready for trial and insisted on the case going to trial. Thereupon Alton filed an affidavit disqualifying Judge Edmunds on the ground of prejudice and applied for the appointment of a special Judge. The law in such cases leaves the court no discretion.

All that is necessary to disqualify a Judge is for a defendant to file an affidavit setting forth that the presiding judge is prejudiced, accompanied by the affidavits of two "reputable" citizens to the same effect. In the present case the two reputable citizens happen to be witnesses for the State, and their names appear on the back of the indictment as witnesses. They are Jacob L. Snyder whose address is given as "Water Rates Office, City Hall," and Peter Herberger of Fourth and Spruce streets Judge Edmunds appointed Judge Green of De Soto, Mo., to try the case and reset it for March 15.

AT THE BLAZING STAKE.

The Fiendish Treatment of a White Boy by Two Young Negroes.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 12.—Conrad Coke and John Ellis, negro boys, yesterday seized Chas. Tinney, a white child of 8 years, and tied him to a stake. Then they piled brushwood about him and set it on fire. The child's cries brought a colored man to the spot, who released him. The child is so badly burned that, even should he survive, he must lose both arms.

Nick Bell at the Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—Nick Bell called at the Senate this afternoon and paid his respects to the Missouri Senators.

SNUFFED OUT.

The Peffer Resolution Tabled by the Senate.

And Thus the Investigation of Sugar Speculation Fails.

VEST WAS PAIRED, BUT COCKRELL VOTED AGAINST THE PROPOSITION.

Gorman Made a Fiery Speech Against It and Denounced the Newspapers—A Look of Relief Followed the Announcement of the Vote.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—As was to be expected the Senate refused to bring about its own disgrace and the Peffer resolution, calling for an investigation into the senatorial speculation in sugar was laid on the table by a vote of 33 to 27. There was quite an exciting time while the resolution was under consideration. Senator Gorman made a fiery speech in favoring the tabling of the resolution. In doing this he dwelt on the infamous character of the American press and the immaculate character of the members of the Senate.

There was almost a titter when Senator Vest arose and said he regretted he was paired as he could not vote for the passage of the resolution.

Senator Cockrell voted to table it.

There was a very apparent look of relief among some of the Senators when it became known that the resolution had been defeated.

Senator Sway was particularly jubilant. It is well known that a canvass had been made of the Senate on the resolution by the Senators at whom it was aimed.

LONG CONSULTATION.

Gresham and Pauncefote Trying to Settle the Behring Sea Trouble.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Secretary Gresham and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, are having many long consultations in the effort to arrange matters so as to give effect to the findings of the arbitrations in the Behring sea case. The bill recently introduced in the House of Representatives by McCreary at the instance of Secretary Gresham is but one step in the road to final settlement. That measure, which defines the limits of the two zones in which seals may not be at taken all, or only under certain conditions, applies solely to vessels sailing under the American flag. As soon as it shall become a law, a bill of similar tenor will be introduced in the British Parliament. That body is not now in session, but it will be in a short time, and it is believed here that there will be no delay in securing the necessary legislation. Further than this it will be necessary to negotiate a treaty between the United States and Great Britain to make binding the results of the arbitration and to this end efforts are now in progress. The principal object to be secured from our point of view is a binding agreement as to the punishments to be meted out to offenders, and especially to bring within the reach of our laws the pelagic sealers under the British flag. It would be of little avail to seize these craft and carry them to port, only to have them discharged by the judiciary; and, as Congress has no power to legislate in the case of British subjects, it becomes necessary to seek authority by treaty for the seizure of offenders of this nationality.

There is some question as to whether or not the modus vivendi will continue in operation even after the enactment of the legislation now pending before Congress and before Parliament. In some quarters the view is taken that this agreement will continue in full force until the very last measure necessary to give effect to the arbitrators' findings has been adopted. If this view should prevail, it would bear very hard upon our interests, for it would oblige the North American Seal Co. to confine their catch to 7,500 skins, to their severe loss, and would also deprive our Government of the bonus of $10 per skin, which it would receive from the 50,000 skins that might be taken in other circumstances. This sum, aggregating $500,000, would go a long way toward defraying the expense of maintaining the fleet of naval and revenue marine vessels on police duty in Behring Sea, and besides it is a question whether the Government would not be liable to the seal company for its loss sustained by reason of the undue restriction upon its operations imposed by the modus vivendi.

CHEWED HIS EAR OFF.

Joseph A. Jackson and Thomas Costello Have a Serious Encounter.

There was a row between two printers in Spiering's saloon, Seventh and Pine streets, at an early hour yesterday morning. The participants were Joseph A. Jackson and Thomas Costello. When the smoke of battle had cleared away Costello had but the very smallest portion of one of his ears left, while Jackson had a many-hued rainbow under his right eye and a long scratch traversing the length of the nose.

There is said to have been been trouble between the men for over a year.

Sunday morning about 5 o'clock, Jackson states, Costello came into Spiering's saloon, where he and several friends were playing cards. Jackson claims that Costello approached the table at which he and his friends were seated and upset the beer of his friends and refused to allow them to drink with him.

Hard names were exchanged between the two when, Jackson claims, Costello struck him a fearful blow in the eye as he was sitting down, and that at the same time several other men jumped upon him. The fight followed with the above result.

The Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—The Senate Finance Committee bill was up for consideration to-day. IT IS SETTLED.

Future of the St. Louis Fair Decided On.

Third Mortgage Bondholders Will Buy It In and Reorganize.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITS ELIMINATED AND CATTLE SHOW TO BE FEATURED.

The Understanding Reached at a Dinner Given the Bondholders by C. C. Maffitt and Ratified by a Meeting Held Later—The Papers Are Now Ready—Directors Interviewed.

The future of the St. Louis Fair Association and Jockey Club has at last been settled. The settlement is the result of a conference between some thirty of the leading third mortgage bondholders, which took place at a dinner given them by Mr. Charles C. Maffitt last Friday night. This gathering was characterized by the attendance of some of the wealthiest business men of St. Louis, who are determined that no outsiders shall secure possession of the Fair Grounds and race track. This element includes most of the leading third mortgage bond-holders and they have decided to continue in control of the property and operate it as one of the chief attractions of the city of St. Louis. Although the Fair Grounds are advertised to be sold under the hammer, April 5 next, the third mortgage bondholders are confident they can come to an understanding with the first and second mortgage bondholders and effect an amicable settlement with the organization's creditors, thereby securing control of the property without a sale. This will shut off any aspiring real estate speculators or race track magnates, who might attend the sale prepared to make the third mortgage bondholders pay over a nomial pricne to remain in control of the property. In addition to the conference at Mr. Maffitt's dinner the third mortgage bondholders met again at the Fair Grounds Saturday afternoon and ratified the agreement entered into the evening previous. As soon as the property is turned over to them for good the third mortgage bondholders will take out State articles of incorporation with a capital in the neighborhood of $500,000. None of the Fair Grounds will be sold just yet, and the annual Fair will be continued in a modified form. Particular attention will be paid towards advancing the thoroughbred and trotting horse and cattle, sheep and swine breeding interests of the State. A great many of the departments of previous fairs will be transferred to the Exposition, where they rightfully belong. It is expected that the new management will come to an understanding with the Exposition directory regarding this matter in the near future. The reorganization means a new set of directors for the Fair Association and some new blood will be infused in the management. Such leading third mortgage bond-holders as Charles Parsons, Walker Hill, Charles C. Moffitt, John M. Sellers and John T. Davis will have much to do with guiding the policy of the organization under the new regime. All of these gentlemen will, no doubt, be selected to serve as directors. At Mr. Maffitt's dinner and at Saturday afternoon's conference, the third mortgage bondholders were unanimously in favor of making ex-Gov. David R. Francis the next President of the organization. It seems to be the prevailing impression among the knowing ones that the ex-Governor will eventually be prevailed upon to accept.

Capt. C. W. Bellairs, superintendent of the grounds, and general wheelhorse, is slated to remain, but according to those who ought to know what they are talking about, Secretary W. M. Lockwood is sure to lose his official head. Secretary Lockwood is an efficient clerical officer, but he knows absolutely nothing about horses and the management of a race track and his successor will be a man who does. Too much of this work has devolved upon Capt. Bellairs' shoulders in the past, and his friends among the third-mortgage bondholders have determined that this state of affairs shall not continue under the new management. The spring and summer running meeting is sure to be inaugurated during the latter part of May, and the programme will be announced around March 19. It is understood that the East St. Louis Jockey Club magnates have offered $100,000 for the betting privileges at the coming meeting. Frank Shaw and the Madison track management will, it is thought, also make a bid, if they have not already done so, for the same privilege.

PAPERS HAVE BEEN PREPARED.

Mr. L. M. Rumsey is Chairman of the Third Mortgage Bondholders' Committee of Organization, appointed to devise a way for the continuance of the fair, if possible. Mr. Rumsey stated this morning that the matter of reorganization would probably be settled within the next four or five days.

"The papers have been prepared and are now being circulated among the third mortgage bondholders for signatures. If enough names are secured the reorganization will go on."

"What of the Fair for the future?"

"As to that, it will be entirely in the hands of the future stock holders. If the third mortgage bond holders become also the stockholders it will be their privilege to choose their own board of directors and make plans. At present any discussion of the features of the Fair would be just so much individual opinion, nothing more. I have heard some changes broached," said Mr. Rumsey, responding to a further question, "but nothing has been done or can be until after the reorganization. Yes, something has been said about omitting all the mechanical exhibits except agricultural implements, and also about expanding the live stock department, but no one has yet received authority to determine anything."

EX-GOV. FRANCIS SEEN.

Ex-Gov. Francis, who will probably be president of the new Fair Board, said: "The property has been advertised for sale in April and I presume the third mortgage bondholders will be bidders, and they may buy the property in. In case they do all matters connected with the perpetuation of the Fair will be determined by them."

Gov. Francis had heard the suggestions about making the St. Louis Fair pre-eminent by a great live stock show, but he had not given the subject sufficient attention, he said, to know whether or not the majority of the third mortgage bond-holders were favorable to that idea.

One of the details connected with the proposed changes in the plan of the Fair was conceived by President Rolla Wells just before the opening of the Fair last year. The idea was not acted upon, however, because of the illness and death of Mr. Wells' father, which took President Wells away from the Fair during the entire week. Mr. Wells thought of converting the refreshment booths under the seats of the amphitheater into pens, in which fine live stock could be shown and the occupants of the pens changed daily. Mr. Wells argued that a display of the splendid live stock of the region tributary to the St Louis Fair would delight thousands of people who never visit it in its present location and are hardly aware of its existence. The booths just spoken of were formerly a source of large revenue to the Fair, but of recent years they have brought in only little money in rentals, and it was thought that if filled with the finest live stock of Missouri, Illinois and Iowa, cared for as such stock was cared for at the World's Fair, it would draw more visitors than any single feature of the Fair ever drew in the most prosperous days of the institution.

INSULTED CHILDREN.

John Spain Fined $300 by Judge Morris This Morning.

John Spain, a laborer of middle age, got the butt end of the law this morning at the hands of Judge Morris. Friday and Saturday Spain was seen among the freight cars at the foot of Lesperance and De Kalb streets, and it is said that he endeavored to entice into the cars Minnie Riefschneider, 11 years old, living at 2104 Lami street, and Lizzie Heller, 9 years old, living at 2224 Bismarck street. It is said that he threw 10-cent pieces and quarters to them to get near him. One of the girls told August Platner, who was passing Saturday afternoon, and said that Spain had insulted them otherwise. Platner informed Officers Connors and Schroeder, who arrested the offender. Judge Morris heard the story of the little girls, and fined Spain $300, despite the defendant's denials.

NEW PROCEDURE.

Some Sunday Law Violations Tried in the Police Court.

A warrant was applied for to-day against Frank Grant, a barkeeper for Louis Celia at Sixth and Morgan streets, on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday. The warrant was refused because the proprietor of the saloon was not present when the liquor was sold. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep stated, however, that Grant could be prosecuted in the police court for selling liquor without a license, as the license only held for week days. Grant will therefore be sent to the police court. This is a new departure in prosecuting Sunday violation cases.

The Whole Crowd Arrested.

Officers Barney Regan and Frank Ballinger visited a disreputable house at No. 911 North Tenth street about 10:30 o'clock last night, called a patrol wagon and took the whole crowd inside the house to the Third District Station for raising a racket. This morning the motley gathering was in the Second District Police Court. It consisted of three white boys, Charles Mathews, John Moran and John Kenny; two colored boys, Frank Jones and Joe Roby, and three disreputable women, Alice Sullivan and Mary Putnam, colored, and Annie Smith, white. Alice and Mary were discharged on the evidence, but the rest were each fined $10 and costs, except Roby, who was only taxed $5. The colored boy Jones and the three white boys said they had just come over from East St. Louis yesterday and had gone to the house on Jones' invitation.

Complimenting the Colonel.

At a meeting of the executive committee who had in charge the celebration of the Emmet Anniversary, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the cordial thanks of this committee, on behalf of the Irish Nationalists of St. Louis, be extended to Col. D. P. Dyer for the excellent and appropriate speech delivered by him at the Emmet Anniversary celebration, March 5, 1894; that A. Hoolan, Jeremiah Sheehan and Joseph McDonnell be delegated to present Col. Dyer a copy of this resolution.

Tatum Not a Candidate.

Mr. Henry C. Tatum, whose name has been mentioned as an applicant for the position of Recorder of Voters, when seen to-day by a POST-DISPATCH reporter, said: "I do not know how my name came to be mentioned in that connection, as I am not an applicant. My business interests are such at present that I could not accept the position even if it were tandered to me, and aside from this I do not want it. You may state positively that I am not in the field."

Denies Clubbing O'Hara.

John O'Hara was fined $5 by Judge Paxson this morning for carrying concealed weapons. O'Hara was arrested at Broadway and Mound street about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night by Officer Lawton. The officer denies that he clubbed the man as stated, and says O'Hara injured his head by falling to the ground while resisting arrest.

Ed Miller Exonerated.

Ed Miller, who was identified by Mr. Flachmeier as the companion of the burglar shot at Twelfth and Biddle streets a short time ago, was exonerated in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day. Flachmeier admitted that he was mistaken in his identification, and a nolle prosequi was entered in the case of Miller, who had never before been arrested on any charge.

The Entombed Miners.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 12.—No trace of the entombed miners in the Gaylord mine at Plymouth Pa., has yet been discovered. The work of rescue is still being pushed night and day.

The Prince of Wales' Yacht.

From the London Telegraph.

The Britannia is on her way to Gibraltar, still in charge of Capt. Carter and with the same crew on board who so often sailed her to victory last season. Once in the Mediterranean there appears to be every reason to suppose that her task will be an easy one. The prizes offered at the various regattas along the Riviera shores are both costly and numerous, and it seems rather surprising that more English racing yachts do not visit the Mediterranean in the spring. There is no doubt that if they did so a great impetus would be given to the yacht racing there, and some such spur is assuredly required, for, keen as the interest which is felt in these races may be, it cannot be denied that the art of yacht racing has not hitherto reached a high standard among the yachtsmen of the South.

What the Judge Saw.

From the Baltimore Sun.

"A sight so strange I could hardly credit to my own eyes," said Justice John W. Streaker of Jonestown, at the Court-house to-day, "was that of a red fox surrounded by a multitude of buzzards, which had evidently determined to devour the little animal. The birds, with their wings raised as if to do battle, seemed about to close in on the fox. He was very much alarmed, and as soon as I scared his tormentors away he made off on a double-quick. His troubles were not yet ended, however, for away in the distance I observed a flock of crows fly down at him and peck him unmercifully, but he finally escaped in the woods."

A Great Surprise.

From the Detroit Free Press.

He was about as close-fisted as they ever get to be in this world, and he got no better as he grew older. On his wife's last birthday, two weeks ago, a neighbor stopped in his office.

"By the way," said the old fellow, "this is my wife's birthday and I want to surprise her some way. What would you suggest?"

The visitor had it in a minute.

"Um—er," he hesitated, "give her a $5-bill and it will be the surprise of her life."

In Boston, of Course.

From Texas Siftings.

"I'm going to get married," said he as he placed a hand as large as a Dutch cheese upon the counter, "and I want a wedding cake."

"It is customary, nowadays," said the pretty bakery girl, "to have the materials of the cake harmonize with the calling of the bridegroom. For a musician, now, we have an oat cake; for a man who has no calling and lives upon his friends, a sponge cake; for a newspaper paragrapher, spice cake, and so on. What is your calling, please?"

"I'm a pugilist!"

"Then you'll want a pound cake."

Not a Paradox.

From Good News.

Brute: "There is a man whom I envy; and curious as it may seem, he envies me."

Friend: "How can that be?"

Brute: "We were both after the same woman—and I married her."

A New Era Match.

From the New York Weekly.

The Coming Man: "Will you let me be your clinging ivy?"

The Coming Woman: "Yes, dearie, and I'll be your sturdy oak."

STAND OR FALL

Rosebery's Ministry Will Follow in Gladstone's Footsteps.

The House of Lords Must Be Shorn of Its Veto Power.

IN A SPEECH TO THE LIBERALS THE PREMIER OUTLINES HIS POLICY.

Resumption of Parliament, in Which High Questions Will Come Up—The Queen Deeply Interested in Ireland' Welfare—Local Government for Scotland—Gladstone at Brighton—Death of Sir James Fitzjames Stephen—General Foreign News.

LONDON, March 12.—Parliament resumed its sitting to-day, entering upon a period that is full of the greatest importance to the empire and marking what may prove to be the beginning of a complete reorganization of parties. In the speech from the throne the Queen says:

Negotiations are in progress with the United States for the purpose of executing the award of the court of arbitration in the question of the seal fisheries of the Behring Sea.

Two collisions, accompanied by lamentable loss of life, lately occurred with the French colonial forces in West Africa. I await the result of the inquiry in regard to these deplorable occurrences with full confidence that they will be examined in a calm and dignified temper, as befits two great nations upon such an occasion.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons: The estimates for the public service will be laid before you. They will be found to make full and adequate provision for the defense of the empire.

My Lords and gentlemen: The recent improvement in the State of Ireland has been continuous and marked. Agrarian crime has been reduced under the administration of ordinary law to the lowest point that has been reached for the last fifteen years. The condition, however, of a considerable body of the evicted tenants of that country requires early attention.

A measure will be submitted to you with the view of a reasonable settlement of this question, deeply affecting the well-being of Ireland.

Bills will be submitted for the amendment of the registration, the abolition of plural voting, dealing with the ecclesiastical establishments of Wales and Scotland, the equalization of rates in London, local government for Scotland on the same basis as recently accorded to England and Wales, and the exercise of direct local control of the liquor traffic.

You will be asked to consider measures for the promotion of conciliation in labor disputes, for the amendment of the factory and mines act, and for the reform of the method of conducting inquiries into fatal accidents in Scotland.

ARRIVAL OF CELEBRITIES.

A large crowd of people gathered in the vicinity of the foreign office to witness the arrival of the celebrities who were to attend the great meeting of the Liberals, which had been convened for noon.

Lord Rosebery, the new Premier, upon his arrival was loudly cheered and a warm welcome was also extended to the other distinguished Liberal leaders. Lord Rosebery also received an ovation as he took the chair in order to preside at the meeting. Sir William Vernon Harcourt, who was the last member of the Cabinet to arrive, was greeted with great enthusiasm.

Only a few peers were present in the House of Lords when Parliament opened, the United States Ambassador, Hon. Thomas E. Bayard being in the diplomats' gallery.

When the arquis of Ripon, Earl Spencer and the Marquis of Bredalbane, the Lords Commissioners, took their places on the bench in front of the throne, the Lord High Chancellor, Lord Herschell, directed the Yeoman usher of the Black Rod to summon the commons; but only fifty of the latter attended to hear the Queen's speech.

IRISH IN CONVENTION.

The McCarthyites assembled at 1 p. m. in Committee Room No. 15, and engaged in an animated discussion of Irish parliamentary matters. Mr. Thomas Sexton, Member of Parliament for North Kerry, informed the correspondent that the meeting was devoted entirely to the internal arrangements of the Irish Parliamentary party, and that though the meeting was still in session at 3 p. m., those in attendance did not know of Lord Rosebery's declaration of policy or of the contents of the Queen's speech.

ROSEBERY'S SPEECH.

The Prime Minister, Lord Rosebery, in addressing the party alluded with considerable feeling to the retirement of Mr. Gladstone, saying that they would "greatly miss that sublime and pathetic figure which enriched and ennobled not merely the Treasury Bench but the House itself." Continuing, Lord Rosebery said:

"It was thought that in the high office to which I have been called there should be a declaration of policy. That is not necessary, as we stand where we did. [Cheers.] There will be no change of measures, and, although there has been a disastrous change of men, they are all pledged to the same policy. [Cheers.] The same measures remain as they are, the programme of the Liberal party, and it is not intended to recede from any one of them. The honor of England and the peace of Europe are safe in the hands of the present Government. The Welsh Church question will be pressed to a definite and successful conclusion. [Cheers.]

THE CAUSE OF IRELAND.

"In regard to the Irish question, we are bound to it by ties of honor and affection. My speech in the House of Lords in 1893 seems to have raised some doubt as to my own position in regard to home rule. Those who have these doubts can only have read the speech in a cursory manner. The policy of home rule will not be less definitely pursued. If there is any doubt on the subject, one pledge which the Government has given in this connection is the continuance in his present office of the Rt. Hon. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland. [Cheers.] Mr. Morley has been offered a higher office, but he thought it his duty not to sever his career from the cause of Ireland. [Cheers.]

"Our illustrious leader, in his last speech, delivered in the House of Commons, made a declaration with which the present Government have entirely identified themselves. [Cheers.]

THE HOUSE OF LORDS AN ANOMALY.

"The conviction has long been forcing itself upon me that with the suffrage which we now enjoy a second Chamber, constituted like the House of Lords, is an anomaly. This conviction has been strengthened by the unhappy chapter of accidents which has turned the House of Lords from a body of hereditary law givers, more or less equally divided, into one great Tory organization entirely at the beck and call of a single party leader. [Cheers.]

"When the Tories were in office the power of veto was not exercised, but when the Liberals are in power the veto is exercised at the dictates of the Tory leader. That is a danger to the constitution to which the Liberal Government is not blind, and they will not lose sight of any measure which is constitutionally presented to the country in this great anomaly peril to which it is exposed. [Cheers.] I will not go so far as my friends. I do not think that the peers should be treated as pariahs. I do not think that the fact that a man was born in a particular position should debar him from the higher opportunities of serving the State, and I do not sympathise with the views of a certain deputation which recently visited the Rt. Hon. Edward Majoribanks (Baron Tweedmouth), though I agree that there is great inconvenience when the Premier is not in the House of Commons.

"I am not one of those who think that the peerage should be considered a stigma and a bar, but while I remain Premier, you may be assured that no Liberal in the ranks will endeavor more steadfastly to do his duty to the party." [Loud cheering.]

HARCOURT ON HOME RULE.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, followed. He said that the enemy flattered themselves that the Liberal party was going to drop home rule. But the language of the Premier and the presence of the Rt. Hon. John Morley, as Chief Secretary for Ireland, was the best answer they could give to this supposition.

Continuing, Sir William remarked that Mr. Gladstone's last speech in regard to the House of Lords was an inheritance for the party, and asserted that this question would prove to be the greatest subject of the future.

Bundesrath and Reichstag.

BERLIN, March 12.—Chancellor Von Caprivi to-day submitted to the Bundesrath a proposal for the coinage of 11,000,000 marks, in 5-mark pieces; 7,000,000 marks in two mark pieces and 4,000,000 marks in one mark pieces. The proposition was made as a result of the increased demand for such coins and from the fact that the silver coinage has fallen 22,000,000 marks below the authorized limit.

In the Reichstag to-day the debate on the Russo-German Consul treaty was resumed.

After some further debate the Reichstag adopted the clause of the treaty which provides for a ten years' duration of the measure.

Sir James Fitzjames Stephen Dead.

LONDON, March 12.—Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, the eminent jurist and judge of the Exchequer division of the High Court of Justice, is dead. He was born in London on March 3, 1829, and has written many valuable works, including "Digest of the Criminal Law" and "A History of the Criminal Law of England."

Police War on French Gamblers.

NICE, March 12.—War on private gambling establishments has been inaugurated by the police. Last evening a raid was made upon a magnificent suite of rooms in the Villa Wehrlin. The players, warned by the porter, managed to escape. The stakes, roulette tables, etc., were seized. The proprietors of the establishment and two managers were arrested.

TROLLEY OUSTS STEAM.

Operating a Railroad by Means of Electricity.

From the Philadelphia Record.

An interesting and important experiment, the result of which will be watched with much interest in the railway world, is soon to be tried on the Delaware River & Lancaster Railroad, a short line in the upper part of Chester County, the operation of which has been suspended for some time because it could not be made to pay. The experiment is the substitution of the trolley for steam as the motive power. If it proves successful, it is believed that the example will be followed on other short roads that have proved unprofitable, notably seashore lines, some of which have had to be abandoned in recent years.

The Delaware River & Lancaster Railroad is only eleven miles long, extending from French Creek Junction on the Pickering Valley branch of the Reading Railroad, across the northern end of Chester County to Falls of French Creek, where it makes connections with a branch of the Washington & Northern Railroad. It was built about four years ago, and after being operated independently for a time was leased by the Wilmington & Northern Co. Though tapping valuable stone quarries, it could not be made to pay, however, and for the past two months no engines or cars have passed over its tracks.

Plans are now under consideration by Col. Du Pont, the president of the original company, not only to resume the operation of the road with new motive power, but to extend it as well, and it is said that with the opening of spring the work of reorganization will begin. The main feature of the scheme is the substitution of an overhead trolley system for steam power. It is claimed that this will not make necessary any alterations to the road, and that practically the only work to be done will be to string the trolley wires. Electric power will be secured from a station to be built at Falls of French Creek and to be run by water from French Creek, which offers an exceptional opportunity for this utilization of its powers.

The extension contemplated is a line between French Creek Junction and Phœnixville, a distance of three miles. Arrangements will be made to secure sufficient electric power at Phœnixville, also, in case the water plant should by any chance fail. With a line direct into Phœnixville, it is thought that considerable trade could be secured from both the Pennsylvania and Reading Railroads.

Engineers who have looked the road over say that it offers no difficulties to the substitution of electricity for steam, and that by using the waters of French Creek to supply the motive power the operating expenses could probably be so reduced as to make the road a paying property. The road will probably be modeled somewhat after the one running between Mt. Vernon, Va., and Washington, on which freight is carried in considerable quantities. A plan is being considered to resume work in the valuable granite quarries at Falls of French Creek, and it is said that fifty carloads of Belgian blocks will be shipped daily over the electric road when it is started.

The Old Clay Pipe.

There's a lot of solid comfort
In an old clay pipe, I find,
If you're kind of out of humor
Or in trouble in your mind,
When you're feeling awful lonesome
And don't know just what to do,
There's a heap of satisfaction
If you smoke a pipe or two.

The ten thousand pleasant memories
That are buried in your soul
Are playing hide and seek with you
Around that smoking bowl.
These are mighty restful moments,
You're at peace with all the world,
And the panorama changes
As the thin blue smoke is curled.

Now you cross the bridge of sorrows,
Now you enter pleasant lands,
And before an open doorway,
You will linger to shake hands
With a lithe and girlish figure
That is coming through the door!
Ah! you recognise the features
You have seen that face before.

You are at the dear old homestead
Where you spent those happy years
You are romping with the children;
You are smiling through your tears;
You have fought and whipped the bully;
You are eight and he is ten.
Oh! how rapidly we travel,
You are now a boy again.

You approach the open doorway,
And before the old arm chair
You will stop and kiss the grandma.
You will smooth the thin white hair;
You will read the open Bible,
For the lamp is lit, you see.
It is now your hour for bed time
And you kneel at mother's knee.

Still you linger at the hearthstone:
You are loath to leave the place,
When an apple cut's in progress,
You must wait and dance with Grace.
What's the matter with the music?
Only this: The pipe is broke,
And the thousand pleasant fancies
Vanish promptly with the smoke.

A SMALL, STILL VOICE.

But the Farmer Had a Good Excuse in Not Shouting About It.

From the Detroit Free Press.

They say that the mountaineers of Kentucky, Tennesse and adjoining States have no sense of humor, and possibly they have not. Be that as it may, as I rode by a miserably poor hillside farm one day, on the headwaters of the Big Sandy, I saw the farmer sitting on the fence, chewing a bit of long green very complacently.

"Good morning," I said; "how far is it to Fanshaw's mill?"

"'Bout three miles in the way you've got to go," he replied in a whisper.

Another question or two brought the same whispered answer.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Have you got a cold?"

"No, mister," he whispered again; "'taint that. It's this yer farm. I've been livin' on it fer ten yers, an' the land's so dern pore I hain't been able to raise my voice on it fer the last five."

After the Battle.

Where the tawny tiger lilies in the marshy meadows bloom,
And the tangled rushes wither by the red and sluggish rill,
There is silence all unbroken; there are secrets all unspoken
That the trembling grass is hiding from the hill.

Where the mystic firs in cluster on the rocky hillsides stand,
Where the vine's empurpled masses in the sunset's passion glow,
Lo! the bird notes are a-dying and the troubled wind is sighing
For the secret that the meadow must not know.

Over meadow, over mountain, in a city by the sea,
There are wives and mothers waiting; there are sweet hopes growing cold;
There are eyes that watch in anguish, there are loving hearts that languish
For the secrets that shall nevermore be told.

Famous Paintings.

Part 1 Ready To-Day.

A Collection of 320 Masterpieces

To be Distributed Among Readers of the Sunday Post-Dispatch . .

THIS Fine Art Series, which will be published weekly, in twenty consecutive numbers, has been prepared at an expenditure of many thousands of dollars. It is the largest and finest collection of photographic reproductions of celebrated paintings ever produced. All art-producing nations are represented. No important school of art has been omitted.

A most careful selection of subjects has been made. Old mythological and religious pictures will have no place in these portfolios. Only attractive, interesting and pleasing subjects have been selected—pictures that tell a story or arouse an emotion—pictures that amuse and recreate, that instruct and inspire.

Whenever, in an Art Gallery, as at Chicago lately, was found a throng around a picture, that picture was a painted story of some human joy or sorrow, some instinct or some passion of the human heart. Such attractive pictures, full of the human interest, will occupy a large place in these portfolios. Nor has it been forgotten, in making the selections, that it is part of art to amuse and to furnish pure recreation.

Eminent artists are represented, such as: Alma Tadema, Rosa Bonheur, Bouguereau, Corot, Dore, Detaille, Dupre, Eastlake, Gerome, Hoffmann, Hunt, Knaus, Ridgway Knight, Landseer, Makovski, Makart, Meyer V. Bremen, Millet, Millais, Schefler, Benj. Constant, Jules Breton, Bierstadt, Beard, J. G. Brown, F. S. Church, Gifford, Whistler, Hart, Toby Rosenthal, etc. But the minor aspirants for public favor, who have not yet been popularized, have not been overlooked. The Committee of Selection have often chosen a meritorious and pleasing picture by a comparatively unknown artist, in preference to an unattractive subject by a painter of prominence.

Each picture described by an able art critic.

The Committee of Selection consists of WILL CARLETON, author of "Farm Ballads," "Farm Legends," etc.; ANGELO DEL NERO, Royal Special Commissioner for Italy to the World's Columbian Exposition; HORACE BRADLEY, Art Manager of Harper's Magazine.

TO BE AIRED.

School Board Employes' Connection With a Building Association.

Thorough Investigation to Be Made by the Directors.

PRESIDENT BROCKMAN AND DIRECTOR DIECKMAN ASSERT THIS.

Want to Clear the Board of Any Connection With the Home and School Association—Expert Rice and Another Authority Claim That the Concern's Statement Shows That It Has Lost Money.

Some of the employes of the Board of Education are going to have a hard time explaining their connection with the Home and School Building and Loan Association. That there will be an investigation into the matter is a foregone conclusion for Mr. J. H. Dieckman, Chairman of the Teachers Committee of the Board, will insist upon one being made, and he is backed by several other directors who are not at all satisfied with the state of affairs as made public in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH.

Probably the most serious phase of the affair is that the Board of Education offices have been used as a branch office for the transaction of the association's business, and that Otto L. Zelle, a clerk in Secretary Player's office, is the paid agent of the association. With the existence of a building association of any kind the Directors of the School Board have nothing to do, but they state that the board will not for a moment tolerate such use of its offices or allow any employe to devote part of the time for which he is paid by the board to the service of the association.

Mr. Dieckman was seen this morning and stated that he deemed an investigation necessary to clear the School Board of all stigma of connection with the Association. "If we took no action in the matter," he said, "we would be placed to a certain extent, in the position of countenancing what has already been done. It is necessary that the public be satisfied that the board has never at any time had any connection with this building association.

PRESIDENT BROCKMAN'S STATEMENT.

President Brockman of the School Board was found on the floor of 'Change, and while willingly answering all questions put to him, would volunteer no statement as to his views of the probable outcome of the matter.

"Was the Home and School Building and Loan Association authorized to use the offices of the Board as a branch office?" he was asked.

"Decidedly not," was the reply. "Their use and mention of Secretary Player's office in this connection was entirely without right or authority. No one having power to do so authorized such a course and had permission been requested it would have been promptly refused."

"How about Otto L. Zelle, an employe in Secretary Player's office, being paid agent of the association?"

"When we employ a man we pay him for his services exclusively for the School Board during our office hours. After 5 o'clock in the evening he can do as he pleases and become agent for all the associations he chooses. I presume Zelle's conduct will be investigated."

"Has any pressure as far as you know been brought to bear on teachers or others to induce them to take stock in this concern?"

"I do not know what has been done, but I will say that the field is a most favorable one for a building association. The fact that a branch office was established in the board building, in their offices in fact, and that many officials held offices in the association would of course have some influence in bringing teachers into line. They had a remarkably good field to work in and the influence which they commanded would, I should judge, be amply sufficient to insure them a large membership without the bringing of direct pressure to bear."

Referring to the financial statement which appeared on the back of the circular sent out by the association, both Mr. Brockman and Mr. Dieckman scouted the claims made that it was in a flourishing condition. "It is easy to see," said Mr. Dieckman, "that they must be losing money instead of making it. Take the meat out of their report, add the assets and liabilities up separately and you have an exact statement of their standing. They are really losing money."

Mr. Brockman also commented upon this. "I presume that the concern will soon find its own level," he said. "No business can continue long losing money as they are at present doing. I have been connected with building associations myself and know exactly how to gauge their standing.

THE ASSOCIATION'S REPORT CRITICISED.

The publication of the statement made by the Home and School Building and Loan Association as to its financial standing in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH was read with interest throughout the city, particularly by building association men, and caused many comments. A good sample of the style of these comments was this morning submitted by Mr. Thomas A. Rice, who has the reputation of being a first-class building association expert. His remarks were fully borne out by another gentleman, who did not wish his name published, but who is well known in financial circles, and who recently had charge of a very large estate. He corroborated the remarks of Mr. Rice in every detail. The following is the communication received from Mr. Rice:

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DEAR SIR—Referring to an article in yesterday's paper about the Home and School Building Association would say that about six months ago I showed in a communication to your paper the absurdity of the claims made by this association, and asked Profs. Long, Cook, Wilcox, Prentis and Deutsch the directors, to come forward, as expert arithmeticians, and show the public how they could make the enormous profit of $700 on an investment of $500 for an average time of fifty months, which is a little over 33 per cent per annum, that being the distinct promise made in a circular having the names of the above professors as directors. The exact words of the circular now before me are as follows: "Five dollars a month for 100 months will yield $1,200." Need I say that no answer was ever vouchsafed by either of the above professor-directors. The reason is simple, no answer is possible. The statement is so evidently absurd and untrue that any of their pupils could demonstrate its falsity in a few seconds.

Now, as stated in the letter of commendation attached to Secretary King's prospectus of the H. and S. B. Association, there is nothing better for small savings than a good building association, but, as a building association secretary, I solemnly protest against the absurd promises of enormous profits to be realized (in imagination) by the credulous dupes who are thus inveigled into the association holding out these fraudulent promises. On my part, I consider it disgraceful that any professor of any school, public or private, should issue to the public such a farcical statement as that $500 invested for fifty months would amount to $1,200, being a net profit of $700 for four and a sixth years, or more than 33 per cent per annum.

To show the falsity of their promises, allow me to make from the statement published in yesterday's issue a statement which, I think, anyone can understand.

3	10 00	32	9 68
4	3 00	03	2 97

From above it appears that instead of making a net profit of 33 per cent per annum, as promised by our honorable principal and professors of our public schools, the association has actually lost 7¼ per cent per annum.

Now I will here give our public school professors, teachers and scholars a new problem, not found in any of their approved text books, and I wish a straightforward answer:

Problem: If $23 invested for an average term of 11½ months has lost $1.70, and is now only worth $21.30, how long, at the same rate of progress, will it take $500 to gain (not to lose) $700, as promised by Prof. Long and associates?

I pause for a reply, and trust I will be treated more courteously than before, when no reply was vouchsafed.

Recollect that I took above statement as I found it, but among the resources I find charter, etc., set down as 780.40. I think these figures erroneous and too high, as a $600,000 charter such as the H. & S. has costs only $327.50 and I do not see where the large balance comes from.

As said before, a well managed building association is a blessing to any community, but it is not an Aladan's lamp that can change stones into gold. Our city, above all cities of the United States, has been cursed by a lot of building associations, which following in the steps of the National Building Association, so called, have held out promises of extravagant profits that have made the heretofore honorable name of building associations almost a stench in the nostrils of the public. Only the ignorant join these windbags. Sensible men laugh at them as humbugs. Unfortunately, those who do join them and lose their money in the end are the poor, the persons who can least afford to lose.

It is high time they were exposed and the public warned against the danger of joining them.

THOMAS A RICE, 822 Chestnut st.

MR. KING DEFERS REPLYING.

Mr. M. Adrian King, Secretary of the Home and School Building and Loan Association, was seen this morning and shown the above statement. He went through it once and remarked that such men as Mr. Rice were "a menance to the community." After reading it a second time he changed his original intention of at once making a reply, and said that he would wait to see what action the School Board would take at its meeting to-morrow night before answering Mr. Rice's statement.

DEATH AND INSURANCE.

Thomas Montgomery Is Alive and His Sister Is Benefited.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 12.—Thomas Montgomery is alive, notwithstanding the fact that the Industrial Life Insurance Co. paid recently $500 insurance on his life under the supposition that he was killed in a railroad wreck near New York last September.

Montgomery's sister, Mrs. Ellen Ingellsby of New Haven, Conn., got the money on the policy. She identified the body of some other man as that of her brother. Montgomery says he left New Haven eighteen months ago, and after a short stay in New York came to Baltimore. Capt. Lewis of the Bayview Asylum states that Montgomery was admitted there last October.

"Tom is here," said the General Superintendent of the asylum. "His syster, a Mrs. Ingellsby, wrote me about two months ago from Connecticut, asking if her brother was here. She said she had heard a story to that effect, but did not believe that there was any truth in it, as she felt confident that her brother had been run over by railroad cars in New York last September."

Montgomery said he supposed his sister believed him dead because he had not written her.

Large Sales of Wheat.

The largest single day's purchases by millers of spot wheat that have been seen in this market so far this season were to-day. In all 240,000 bushels No. 2 wheat were traded in, the United Elevator Co. being the seller and the basis of price paid 2 cents below what the May option was selling for at the time. The range paid was 54 cents down to as low as 53¼ cents. Of the above amount 75,000 bushels were bought for shipment to mills located in the South, and the balance taken by city and near-by country mills. This increased business in cash wheat was due to a considerable decline in the speculative market, and that was due to a combination of depressing influences, most prominent of which was a report of the Department of Agriculture at Washington indicating more wheat in this country than the trade believed there was.

Exchange Delegates Report.

The Merchants' Exchange Board of Directors met this afternoon to receive the reports of H. F. Whittemore and H. F. Langenberg, who represented the Merchants' Exchange at the Trans-Mississippi Convention recently held in San Francisco, and of H. B. Slaughter, who attended the conference at Washington of Boards of Trade's representatives with Congressman Hatch over the anti-option bill. The board also investigated the charge made in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH that certain members were carring on a "bucket-shop" trade on the floor of the Exchange. It was not believed a case could be made against these fracturers of the rules of the organization, as no member could be found who would appear against the alleged transgressors.

Children's Home Society.

The State Board of the Children's Home Society of Missouri, which was to have met this morning to hear the report of its subcommittee on the issues of the quarrel between Rev. C. F. Williams and Miss Isadora Dowden, postponed the meeting until 4 o'clock this afternoon at 1414 Lucas place. By a misunderstanding some of the members of the board met at Bowman Hall and others at the office of the St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The Play Was Over.

From the Everett Herald.

A very funny thing happened at the play the other night, when Madeline Merli appeared in "The Story of a Kiss." The climax was reached where the double tragedy comes in; the enamored lover of the infatuated woman slew her with a stiletto; she fell over on the sofa and expired, while he in a mad frenzy drained a glass of poison and ended his miserable career. Upon this thrilling finale the curtain dropped, but the audience retained their seats, uncertain whether or not the play was over. To settle the question a matter-of-fact youth went directly to the point by ascending the steps to the green room. Presently he reappeared and said: "That's all." The spectators laughed and left. They are still puzzling their wits to know whether they are dullards or whether the playwright made a poor finish.

Heavy Responsibility.

From Texas Siftings.

"Have you got any family?" asked Mac-Anderson, a San Antonio lawyer, of a colored man whom he was appointed by the court to defend, the latter being charged with having stolen a horse.

"I'se got no family yit. I looks to you for dat."

"Look to me to supply you with a family" exclaimed the astounded advocate.

"I looks to you an' de jury, boss, I does for a fac'."

"What kind of stuff is that you are talking?"

"Hit's just what I says. Miss Matildy Snowball says ef I only gets one yeah in de penopotentiary she'll wait fur me, but ef I gets moah, den she is gwine ter marry de very first niggah what comes along. So yer sees, boss, what a 'sponsibility dar is restin' on yer."

Try a Shingle.

From the Hallard City Times.

A lady correspondent wants to know if we believe in cures by laying on of hands. We do, madame, we do. But if you want to make the cure quite radical, we think a slipper or a cedar shingle would do better.

A Horrible Child.

From the Indianapolis Journal.

Visitor: "What do you call your dollie?"

Small Girl: "Circus."

"Circus? For goodness sake, why?"

"Well, her voice has a sort of sawdust ring."

MANY NOVELTIES.

Magnificent Opening at the Parisian Cloak Co.'s Palatial Store.

The "Opening" this morning of the millinery, cloaks and gowns of the Parisian Cloak Co., Mr. A. Aal, manager, and Mr. Wylie, superintendent, was a new era in St. Louis. For the first time the ladies have a superb, spacious establishment devoted exclusively to their needs without the intervention of seamstress or fitter, and with capable managers in charge of each department. It is a new thing for a lady to be able to step into are establishment and be properly accoutred with lingerie, gowns, wraps, bonnets, hats and gloves, stylish and nobby, perfect fitting and of any material, quality and price desired. For several months, the large establishment of this company has been undergoing alterations preparatory to this event, and no little surprise and admiration was expressed by the immense throng of visitors this morning when they saw for themselves the result; each floor was decked with palms, and luxurious, cushioned seats everywhere invited repose, while listening to the choice programme of music which was played by the orchestra both morning and afternoon. The first floor is devoted chiefly to coats capes and outer wraps of every description and quality, of which only a few may be mentioned. One dainty little affair is a shoulder cape of net, thickly sprayed with jet and green scoll trimming, glittering with every movement; ruffles of lace form the edge, and epaulettes. Another novelty is a combination of moire silk, applique lace, forming a shoulder cape, a ruff of ribbon with long ends forming the finish. Another nobby style is the Marie Antoinette visite, with long moire fronts and lapels turning back over a shoulder cape of lace. A Louis XIV. coat is of black broadcloth over a long vest of moire, which extends around the back, forming an underskirt for the coat. One of Pangnord's coats is of black broadcloth, full skirt, the shoulders, cuffs and epaulettes richly jetted. It is lined through with lavender satin, and has a rich jabot of creamy lace in front. A dainty little shoulder cape is a combination of black and cream lace. Upon this same floor, under charge of Mr. C. A. Howe, may be seen an exhaustless store of lingerie, of dainty muslin and embroidery, or delicate silks and laces; also corsets of every desirable make and quality and an immense display of gloves. An elevator carries the visitor quickly to the second floor, where the millinery parlors are displays the most superb line of hats and bonnets that she has ever yet produced, and a marvelous place she has for them. There can be nothing finer in New York, and certainly there is nothing like it west of the great metropolis that can compare with it in space and luxurious appointments. Right at the elevator is a charming little pagoda, of carved wood, with comfortable seats, which serves as a resting place for the tired shopper, and to the right is a nook in which is displayed a wealth of flowers that might tempt the bees. Upon the Washington avenue front is a half dozen or more luxurious little cabinets lined with mirrors in which are hidden away the choicest bits of millinery, where patrons may sit secluded and be served to their liking, with a love of a bonnet. Only a few of these dainty chapeaux can be mentioned. A first is of black armure braid, hood brim, with violet leaves, and black Russian violets and roses. A Nacre straw is trimmed with girofle empire crepe and jetted cock's plumes and black Russian violets, the latest novelty of the season. An exquisite set is a plaque of black gelatine lace, with located, with Mrs. Medbury, whose matchless taste in the matter of bonnets and hats has long been appreciated by the women of fashion of St. Louis. She has just returned, and with a most efficient corps of assistants a shoulder cape of black moire and jetted gelatine lace to match. Besides these imported novelties, there are hats and laces, and jets, and braids galore, of which the daintiest confections may be manufactured at an hour's notice Upon the third floor is displayed the dainty tea gowns of muslin and silk and lace and percales and cashmeres, and a most attractive line of children's dresses, for girls from 4 to 14 years of age. Mrs. C. A. Howe is in charge of this tasteful display.

Miss Belle Horwitz presides over the smart suits and swell gowns imported from Paris, of which there is a marvelous display, a single visit being sufficient to satisfy the most critical observer as to the perfect fit and finish of these garments. One beautiful gown is of black embroidered crepe de chine, a long pointed overskirt made over black silk, faced up with the crepe and the bodice made of black chiffon over silk, with large puffed elbow sleeves; frills of chiffon finishing the waist at the throat. A very modish successor to the Eaton suit is shown in the stylish and serviceable Tuxedo suit, the coat, worn over a mannish pique or embroidered vest. These suits come in all qualities, and may be had from $12.50 to $25. A nobby suit of navy blue serge, trimmed with black braid, at the former price, and an awfully swell, brown hop-sacking, tailor made, the coat faced with black moire, the simulated vest finished with a jabot of cream lace matching the band which trims the skirt. An exquisite gown for a mourning toilette is of some soft black silk and wool goods, the full round skirt trimmed with narrow folds of the goods, and the stylish waist finished with the bands crossing, a la militaire, from side to side. Miss Horwitz also shows a very nobby line of cute little jackets for children, from one and a half to three years. The "Houri," made of the softest wool fabric, double breasted, with short ruffle skirt, large puffed sleeves and square sailor collar. There are also pretty fancy shoulder capes for girls from 8 to 14 years. On this floor may be also found the five sisters, who will dress the hair and manicure the hands.

The Dyspepsia Victim.

From the New York Tribune.

A peppery-faced man came into a down-town restaurant the other day, sat down and scanned the bill of fare with critical eye. He had another man with him, who inquired: "Well, watcher going to eat?"

"Welsh rabbit, I guess."

"Rather indigestible, isn't it, to work on?"

"Maybe, but I feel like having some, that's all," replied the peppery-faced man. "I tell you what," he went on, "now, I've had dyspepsia for pretty near thirty years. Tried everything—ate nothing but beefsteak, drank nothing but hot water for months—took no end of medicine—exercised and gave up smoking, and all that sort thing. But it didn't do a bit of good. I declare I think it made me worse with thinking about myself. So I just made up my mind to put an end to the whole business, and eat what I pleased. What do you think I had for my breakfast this morning? Well, sir, a pork chop, sir, a pork chop, and buckwheat cakes with maple sirup on 'em, and hot rolls and coffee—pretty good for a sick man, eh? And that's the way I do right along. If I'm sick, why, then, I'm sick, and that's all there is to it. If I ain't sick, who, so much the better. Anyhow, it takes the thing off my mind, you see.

"What'll I have for dessert? Well, waiter, see here—got any good mince pie? I think I'll have to have some—nice piece of hot mince pie, waiter, with plenty of sugar and a bit of cheese!"

A New Style.

From the Detroit Free Press.

The guest at the restaurant made four or five attempts to cut the meat before him, but his knife bounced off in each instance and he finally called on the waiter.

"What is that?" he asked, nodding at the offending flesh.

"Dat's beef-steak, sah."

"Well, you take it out to the kitchen and tell the cook to give me an old-fashioned piece in place of it. I never did like these pneumatic tires, anyhow."

Not Much on Distance.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

"Friend," said the candidate, to the fellow at the gate, "how far is it to the next settlement?"

"About half a acre."

"And how far is that?"

"Well, hit's a right smart ways."

"I mean how many yards?"

"Well, thar ain't any yards 'tall tell you git thar, an' then you'll strike Bill Spurlin's yard an' six yard dogs, all loose an' a-hungry!"

Heirlooms a Drug in the Market.

From the London Truth.

Heirlooms are becoming a drag in the market. The latest are the Eglinton jewels, which are to be dispersed at Christie & Manson's on the 22d of this month. Among them are a necklace, ear-rings and brooch which are said to have belonged to Mary Queen of Scots. The jewels are of enameled gold, set with rubies, emeralds and pearls.

MINISTERS' MEETINGS.

The Presbyterians Think Their Assessment for Rev. Hagerty's Salary High.

At to-day's meeting of the Presbyterian ministers Rev. S. J. Niccolls offered resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. Warner of Kirkwood, who died some weeks ago. Rev. B. P. Fullerton of the Lucas Avenue Cumberland Presbyterian Church read a paper on the proper examination of candidates for admission to the church. The assessment levied upon the Presbyterian churches for the salary of Rev. Thomas Hagerty, City Chaplain of the Evangelical Alliance, was taken up. The total amount for the Presbyterians was $380, which the ministers thought large, but which they agreed to pay. The assessments on the several churches were changed, however.

The Presbytery met at 10 a. m., but adjourned almost immediately until 2 p. m., when the application for admission of Rev. W. W. Grundy, late of the Methodist Church, was considered.

A committee of two from the Southern Methodist ministers' meeting appeared before the Methodist ministers and asked them to appoint two delegates, one lay and one ministerial, to a convention to form the Anti-saloon League. The committee, appointed at the last meeting of the Methodist ministers to consider the formation of an auxiliary to the Church Extension Society, made its report to-day. The committee recommended that a Church Relief and City Missionary Society be organized as an auxiliary to the Church Extension Society. Rev. W. T. Lewis read a paper entitled "The Witness of Palestine to the Integrity of the Scriptures." Most of the ministers leave to-night to attend the annual district conference at Lebanon, Mo., on the 14th inst.

The Southern Methodist ministers listened to a paper by Rev. Mr. Rinkle of Carondelet, who took exception to the life tenure of bishops.

Rev. Mr. Parsons read a paper before the Christian ministers on "Confession of Faith."

The Baptist Ministers discussed a proposition to solicit for St. Louis the International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union for 1895. The convention is being held this year in Toronto. The matter was laid over until Monday.

A Homespun Yarn.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

A citizen of Cave Spring, in this wonderful State of Georgia, says that he once owned a very fine dog, but, unfortunately, the dog had a bad habit—that of killing sheep—and it became necessary that the dog should be killed. The gentleman took the dog to a swamp and, as he thought, killed it. He held his dog in such high esteem that he decided that he would skin it and preserve the hide as a remembrance of his former pet and did so.

The following morning the man heard a dog baying in the swamp, and the bark sounded so much like his dog's that he decided he would go and see the dog that was barking.

On approaching the dog in the swamp he found it was his skinned dog that had come to life during the night and in the morning, true to his instincts, had "treed" a squirrel.

IN QUIET BERLIN.

Whistling and Other Noisy Street Nuisances Are Officially Suppressed.

From the London Telegraph.

Our Berlin correspondent has recently apprised us that the Berlin police are permanently under instructions to repress whistling, whether recreative or utilitarian, with the utmost rigor, and display unrelaxing energy in carrying out their orders to the letter. Whistling in public is not only repugnant to the German apprehensions of "die hohere Bildung," or "higher culture," but actually constitutes a minor misdemeanor, and as such is punishable by fine, with the inevitable alternative of imprisonment. The former penalty has been incurred within the past few days by a hall porter of a fashionable hotel, Unter den Linden, who persisted in sounding his whistle to summon a cab for a client of the establishment, after having been forbidden to do so by an agent of the law.

Appealing from the sentence of the police authorities to the judgment of a civil court, the porter pleaded that from time immemorial it had been the custom in Berlin to whistle for droschkies, once, twice, thrice or four times, according to the relative quality or capacity of the vehicle required. This plea, however, the Judge rejected as irrelevant to the point at issue—to-wit: the illegality of whistling in a public thoroughfare—and further mulcted the applicant in the sum of 3 marks "for making a noise that disturbed the repose of the public."

In some respects the Prussian police authorities, to their credit and praise be it admitted, are much stricter than our own in enforcing the suppression of noise nuisances. They are inflexible, for instance, in prohibiting the performance of street bands. They only grant organ-grinding licenses to a few infirm old soldiers, who, moreover, are not permitted to work their instruments of torture in roadways or sidewalks, but only in certain prescribed open places, or in the courtyards of private houses at the special request of their inmates. On the other hand, they are over-tolerant with regard to all manner of street cries, and to the distracting clamor raised by the children on their way to and from school at certain hours of the day.

Prussia is conspicuously a music-loving and music-making country. As the inhabitants of its cities for the most part live in flats, they are not allowed to play or sing in their apartments after 10 o'clock p. m., unless with the express consent of the persons residing immediately above or below them, whose innate right to enjoy unbroken rest "o' nights" they are bound to respect. Nor may they keep on their premises any furred or feathered animals addicted to the nocturnal utterance of sounds that "murder sleep" and give rise to irritation of temper. The conscientious dog, prompted by a sense of duty to bark all night, if notoriously vociferous, has to be severely eliminated from the precincts of a Prussian town house.

GIRLS WITHOUT CURB.

There Is a Desire for Unrestraint Inherent in Every Woman.

From the Queen.

Granting that the output of feminine activity demands a corresponding freedom from chaperonage, there are still thousands of girls who do not go out to earn their bread, and yet are practically unaccompanied by mother or chaperone.

We know that the highest bred and the most lofty in class do not suffer this gypsy-like liberty to their unmarried daughters, but many ladies—well-bred gentlewomen of the upper middle class—do, to the loss of all concerned. For, indeed, this quasi-masculine independence of manner and bearing, of thought and talk characteristic of our modern girls, is not of the loveliest order of things feminine, nor is it most conducive to the best happiness of the home. It is a habit that clings as close as a Nessus shirt, and change of condition does not alter it.

The free-going girl remains the free-going wife, and the restraints of maternity are submitted to with an ill grace when imperative, but for the most part are shirked altogether. Most of us have that drop of gypsy blood in us which loves unshackled freedom, and is irked by conventional restrictions, and one of the great aims of social life is to tame this natural rebelliousness and reduce it to the milder level of conformity.

What, indeed, is all education but the super-imposition of art on nature?—the substitution of restraint for impulse?—the acceptance of law for liberty? From the first moment, when those wandering fingers of Master Baby make for the sugar bowl, to the last of his mortal life, we all have to learn self-restraint and apply the lesson practically. And how has it come about that our girls, of all the various members of the social body, are to be the ones without the curb to which others have to submit, is a problem that a man need not be a fool yet still be unable to solve.

An Unimportant Detail.

From the Chicago Record.

Maude: "I thought your mother didn't give you permission to read trashy novels."

Gladys (continuing to read from a garish yellow back): "She doesn't."

Easily Kept.

From the New York Weekly.

Lady: "I am afraid you did not make any good resolutions this year."

Tattered Tom: "Yes, I did, mum; I made one and I kept it, too."

"I am greatly pleased to hear that. What was it?"

"I resolved not to run in debt fur drinks, mum."

ABOUT SLEEP.

Nerve Tissues Are Best Repaired by Short Naps and Plenty of Food.

From the Illustrated London News.

If I mistake not, Sir James Crichton Browne, in the course of a recent address, remarked upon the curious elasticity of our brain as regards sleep. He cited the case of people who rarely slept well or much, and who, nevertheless, are able to carry on intellectual work with ease and ability. I suppose there is a "habit" of brain in the matter of sleep as in other respects, and while, ordinarily, we demand a fair quantum of rest, some of us contrive, as a habit, to get along with a minimum of somnolent repose. This subject was lately recalled to mind when I happened to be dining alone with a well-known surgeon in busy practice.

My friend is a man who, like myself, journeys over the length and breadth of the land. He has just returned from a long and tedious journey, tired and fagged. He sat down to dinner. Between the courses he fell sound asleep, let us say for three minutes—not more, certainly. After each nap he woke up, ate his quantum, and went off again into slumber. I said nothing, but watched him closely. I observed that after each awakening he grew brighter, the tired look disappeared, and by the time that dinner was at an end Richard was himself again. I joked him on his instalments of sleep. His reply was characteristic.

"Don't you know," said he, "that it isn't a long sleep which is needed to refresh an active brain? Nerve tissue is repaired easily with very little sleep if you also take food."

Of my own experience the remark holds good; and it reveals a very curious and in some respects anomalous condition of the brain and its ways.

HE GOT FIXED.

A Tramp With Good Aspirations Manages to Win His Daily Bread.

From the Detroit Free Press.

When the cook opened the door to the timid knock of the peripatetic without, she found him meekly waiting.

"Good morning," he said, "have you an old Sunday-school book about the house I could take?"

The cook was knocked plumb speechless.]

"A Sunday-school book?" she gasped.

"Yes, miss," he replied.

"What in the name of goodness do you want with that?"

He stepped a little nearer the door.

"You see, miss, it's this way," he said in explanation; "when I was a little boy and read that story of Jonah swallowing the whale I used to have some doubts about it. Here lately, though, I've got so holler myself that I kinder thought I'd like to read it over again and see if it wasn't a good deal easier to believe."

"What a dandy you are," exclaimed the cook, looking him over carefully. "Come in here by the fire and I'll fill you up to the neck."

Pensive Penciling.

From the Somerville Journal.

The self-made usually wants a tailor-make girl, when it comes to be a question of taking unto himself a wife.

When you tell a woman that she is cross, and she snaps out spitefully, "I ain't!" there is nothing else in the world for you to do but apologize.

Hale and Hearty at 105.

Bridgeton (N. J.) Special.

Mrs. Hannah A. Chard, who claims to be approaching her 105th birthday, has just left her home near Port Norris to spend the few days yet remaining to her at the old homestead at Ferrell, Gloucester Co., where she has a son who is 71 years old. She rode the entire distance, nearly fifty miles, in a carriage, stopping at Millville for a brief visit on her way. She is well preserved in body and of remarkably keen mind. Three years ago she buried a daughter who was 75 years old.

His Tomb.

From the Indianapolis Journal.

"I see you got another hired man," said the man who had been away.

"Yas," said Mr. Haicede, "I hev. Bill, he died."

"Buried around hereabouts?"

"Wal," answered Mr. Haicede, waving his hand in a comprehensive way, "I guess he's sorter plowed under around here. Tried to blow up some stumps an' didn't git out of the way quick enough."

A REAL PHILOSOPHER.

He Had a Breezy Experience and Didn't Ask for Much Help.

From the Detroit Free Press.

A very dilapidated specimen of the chronic tramp struck a gentleman on Jefferson avenue one cold morning recently.

"Beggin' yer pardon, boss," he said politely, "but did you ever sleep in a hogshead all night with both ends open?"

"I don't remember it if I ever did," was the rather surprised reply.

"I guess you never did, er you wouldn't fergit. Did you ever wear pants that the wind whistled a chune through in January?"

"No."

"Ner shoes that the ice water was on draught in all winter?"

"Not much."

"Never went a week with nothin' to eat but cold meat and dry bread, did you?"

"I never had to."

The tramp's face fairly beamed.

"Well," he said, "there's where I've got the bulge on you. Now, gimme a dime and with money in my clo's I guess I'll make a purty fair show in the percession, even if I ain't a millionaire."

His philosophy netted him a quarter.

Clearly Entitled to the Day.

From the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Howell: (of the firm of Gettup & Howell), "Is there any good reason, Mr. Ademup, why you should want to take the day off?"

Bookkeeper: "Why, yes, sir, I think there is. My youngest boy fell and broke his leg this morning, the house next door was on fire when I left home, my daughter is to be married at noon, it's George Washington's birthday and I'm sick."

An Explanation.

From the Washington Star.

"What do you mean," he asked of a Weather Bureau employe, "by giving us this snow and slush on Washington's Birthday?"

"On Washington's Birthday!" the young man gasped.

"Yes."

"Great Scott! That's what comes of my being so absent-minded. I got mixed on my dates somehow and thought it was inauguration day."

Tommy Argues the Case.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"I don't see what's the use of me being vaccinated again," said Tommy, baring his arm reluctantly for the doctor.

"The human body changes every seven years, Tommy," replied his mother. "You are 11 years old now. You were in your fourth year when you were vaccinated first, and it has run out."

"Well, I was baptized when I was a baby. Has that run out, too?"

The Next Best Thing.

From the Indianapolis Journal.

Minor Base-Ball Magnate: "I see that they are going to have Corbett as a base-ball attraction in the East. Don't you think we ought to do something or other?"

Second B.-B. M.: "Yes, I think we ought. Which would give us the most advertisement—hire Sam Jones or have some one steal the diamond?"

Out West.

From Texas Siftings.

"Did you pass the hat, Deacon?"

"Yes."

"What's in it?"

"Well, fort'nitely, parson, the linin' is still thar. First time it ever happened, parson. I reckon the boys is gettin' religious at last."

The Effect of the Remedy.

From Texas Siftings.

"The doctor ordered your husband whisky for his rheumatism. Does it do him any good?"

"He says it does him a world of good, but I notice the twinges come upon him more frequently than ever."

When Mither's Gane.

From the Detroit Free Press.

It mak's a change in a'thing roon'
When mither's gane.
The cat has less contented croon,
The kettle has a dowie tune,
There's naething has sae blythe a soon',
Sin' mither's gane.

The bairnies gang wi' ragged claes,
Sin' mither's gane.
There's nane to mend their broken taes,
Or laugh at a' their pawky ways,
The nichts are longer than the days,
When mither's gane.

Wha cheers them when there's ocht amiss,
Sin' mither's gane?
Wha tak's their pairt in that or this,
[illegible]
Wi' kindly word an' guid nicht kiss—
Dear mither's gane.

The father's there; but losh! pair man,
Sin' mither's gane,
Although he does the best he can,
He hasna got a tender han'—
[illegible] o' nature's plan,
When mither's gane.

[illegible]
Sin' mither's gane.

SENATORS in job lots come high, but the protected trusts must have them.

THE prosecution of the Butler case was admirably conducted for the defense.

WHEN Duestrow reads the Zachritz speech in the Butler case all his hopes will be revived.

IF the honest Senators have the courage of their convictions the Peffer resolutions will be historic.

WHEN the Coxey-Brown army arrives in Washington all Rotten Row pageants will have to make way for it.

IT is likely to come about that seats in the Senate will be craved chiefly for what there is for them in Wall Street.

INFLUENTIAL men charged with crime throw away money by hiring attorneys as long as Zachritz is Circuit Attorney.

HAS the Sugar Trust been spending large sums in Washington in order to keep up the wages of American workingmen?

IN the mirror held up to Chicago by Mr. Stead other American cities may see themselves reflected to no small extent.

"JIM" LEARY is lucky to escape the penitentiary for prosecuting a son of Boss Butler for attempting to shoot him to death.

SOME appreciation of the degradation of Zachritz in the Butler case may be gained from the fact that even his party organ condemns him.

STERLING MORTON will no doubt at once take note of the suspicion that gamblers in grain are getting tips from the Agricultural Department.

THE Sugar Trust is an able McKinleyizer. The other monopolies are active, but they are somewhat in the rear of the saccharine bribers.

SINCE the rise in the Mississippi every water consumer has discovered land. It is easy to be a Columbus, but the honor has to be paid for semi-annually.

THE Republicans of the Iowa saloon districts and the Republicans of the Iowa rural districts are finding it exceedingly difficult to flock together. They are certainly not drinking to one another's health.

THE Coxey-Brown army of tramps will advance on Washington from Massilon, O., a State which, like Pennsylvania, has been enabled by law to plunder other States for many years. The higher the tariff the more paupers and tramps there are in the States most protected.

THE POST-DISPATCH has reprinted earnest protests against the May convention from nearly thirty of the stanchest and most influential Democratic papers published in the most reliably Democratic counties of Missouri. And more are coming.

IF the political complexion of Louisiana or any other State cannot be preserved without dishonest legislation, the sooner that complexion changes the better. If there is nothing in politics but robbing Peter to pay Paul, it is of no consequence what party is in power.

THE Harrison boom is not to be sneezed at by Messrs. McKinley and Reed. A Kansas City man actually went up and kissed Benjamin when the ex-President was on his way to California. If McKinley and Reed have got a smack from anybody, man or woman, since they set out to be President, news of it has not yet reached the papers.

"THOSE who hoped to see the McKinley bill repealed," as Senator Brice describes them, continue to hope, but they do not expect much abatement of McKinleyism as long as the Brices, Gormans and Hill control the Senate. The condition precedent of any real progressive reform lies in the retirement of such men from positions of public trust.

NOT less than 20,000 people visited Forest Park yesterday for the purpose of seeing the progress of the work on the POST-DISPATCH Lake. This vast throng shows the profound interest taken in the lake and indicates the value of it. It should prompt citizens to join in making the work of constructing it and the relief it gives the unemployed as successful as possible.

HON. H. W. SALMON has been very successful in manipulating the Democratic party in Missouri, and great profits have accrued to him from his success. But if his little May convention deal with Maffitt and Francis and the railroad attorneys had for its object the turning down of the Missouri delegation, or the switching of Missouri Democracy from its old platform to a new Cleveland platform, he is going to be defeated this time. The rural roosters are awake, and they are going to be on their guard against that turntable whether they meet in May or July. They don't want to see 75,000 Democratic farmers stampeded into the Populist camp by a Democratic State Convention.

A GOVERNMENTAL BUCKET SHOP.

Last Friday a cipher telegram was received in St. Louis from Chicago saying that the Government report from the Department of Agriculture would estimate the farmers' reserves of wheat at 115,000,000 bushels. Another telegram said that the report "would be bearish on wheat and bullish on corn."

The report when made public confirmed both these hints. The amount of wheat in the hands of the farmers is placed at 114,000,000 bushels and of corn at 589,000,000 bushels. This is bearish on wheat and bullish on corn.

How did the information leak out? Have the speculators placed agents in the department as the protected interests have put representatives on the floor of the Senate? This is not the first time the report has been anticipated and in every instance the speculators have been unerring in their forecast.

If the Department of Agriculture is maintained for such purposes it had better be abolished. If its officials are partners in speculative deals and use the facilities of Government to feather their own nests, after the manner of retained Senators, its usefulness to the people is gone. There is grave doubt whether the Department of Agriculture is not a useless luxury at best. But if it is to be run in partnership with a bucket-shop it is worse than useless.

Two hundred newsboys on the down town streets are selling the Daily Post-Dispatch for 2 cents. Our patrons are requested to notify us of any attempt on part of newsboys to force them to pay more than 2 cents for the Post-Dispatch or to force them to buy with other papers "three for a nickel." Give time and location of newsboy refusing to sell the Daily Post-Dispatch for 2 cents "straight." All persons who handle the Post-Dispatch on the streets do so under the agreement that it will be sold for 2 cents, if desired, independent of any combination.

THE MEED OF DISHONOR.

When we predicted that James J. Butler would not get a fair trial for shooting Leary we had no idea of the comprehensive thoroughness with which that prediction would be fulfilled. We are forced to confess ignorance of the full capacity of Circuit Attorney Zachritz for placing new and darker stains upon the administration of justice in the Criminal Court.

This ignorance of the possibilities of injustice in the trial of accused persons with political "pulls" was based upon an underestimate of his "nerve." We thought we had accurately taken the measurement of the man from the voluminous records of his misconduct. We thought we had faithfully represented his true character to the people when he sought promotion at their hands from the office of Assistant Circuit Attorney to that of Circuit Attorney. We thought that the facts we published, with accompanying comments concerning his misconduct in the lower office, sufficiently indicated what was to be expected of him in the higher office.

But we find that we were mistaken. We owe some apology to Zachritz and the bosses who combined to put him in his present place. His conduct in the Butler case shows that he was not given the full credit of his capacity for the shameless degradation of office upon which he apparently prides himself and for which he received promotion. He is blacker than he was painted.

There is some excuse, however, for our failure to discern the full possibilities of Zachritz' effrontery. It is impossible to foresee the unprecedented. It was impossible to predict that Zachritz would be the first public prosecutor to openly use all the powers and opportunities of his office to shield an influential prisoner; that he would be the first public prosecutor to offer an apology for troubling a citizen with a political pull by trying him under a charge of crime; that he would be the first public prosecutor whose zeal in behalf of an accused person of influence could lead him to impeach the testimony of his own principal witness and earn the fee of the attorney for the defense by pleading with the jury to acquit the defendant.

It is impossible to do full justice to Mr. Zachritz. We can only credit him with doing more for his political masters than could fairly be expected of him. We can only point out to the respectable citizens how fully their votes have carried out the purposes of the disreputable combine which fixed the nomination for Circuit Attorney in its own interests at the last election. We can only render to Zachritz the full meed of the dishonor he seeks. He has earned not only the distrust of honest citizens, but the confidence of rascals "by merit raised to that bad eminence."

A JOURNALISTIC TODDLER.

We congratulate our esteemed contemporary, the Globe-Democrat, that it has at last given evidence of a capacity to learn something in journalism.

For many years the Old Pretender has stood on an "I am holier-than-thou" pedestal, viewing with an expression of lofty scorn the passing procession of journalistic progress. It has affected supreme contempt for the attempts of more enterprising journals to please the people and meet their wants. Daily in the "Temple of Truth" it has offered up public and ostentatious thanksgiving that it was not as other newspapers were, a caterer to the tastes of the public and a winner of popularity. It has loudly proclaimed its thanks that its pages were unstained with the ink of coupons and all other features of a similar kind, which please and help the people.

But a change has come over its spirit. It seems to have learned a thing or two about the people and modern journalism. It appears to have discovered that while it was posing and patting itself on the head for its superior holiness the journalistic procession was getting out of sight up the road.

The columns of advertising which it gave yesterday and to-day to a coupon scheme show that it has "taken a tumble" and has concluded to hustle in the footsteps of the POST-DISPATCH and other successful newspapers.

It is a mere beginner as yet and is far behind the leader of St. Louis journalism. Its offers cannot approach the attractiveness of the POST-DISPATCH'S, but it is gratifying that it is willing to toddle along in the rear. There is hope for it.

SENATOR GORMAN has not only embarrassed himself, but he has greatly confused the Democrats of his own State. An artful Republican in the Maryland Legislature has introduced a resolution thanking Senators Gorman and Gibson "for the maintenance of a part of the tariff duty on coal and other material products of the State." Though the resolution has been referred to a committee, and the Democratic members desire that it shall die there, the wicked Republicans will make every effort to bring it to a vote. Democratic Senators who are merely assistant Republicans are everywhere bringing ridicule upon the party which they so much misrepresent.

THE scheme of sending pretty factory girls to Washington to lobby for the high tariff monopolies is sufficiently wicked of itself, and it is to be hoped that the story that Mrs. J. Ellen Foster is carrying it out is without foundation. If women are to go into politics in this way, imitating the worst that masculine politicians do, what honest man can feel like aiding them in their efforts to acquire the right of suffrage?

IF the 40,000 colored voters of Indiana carry out their proposed breaking away from party lines it will be a serious matter for the Republicans. Without the blacks the party will hardly survive. The services rendered by the colored voter have been poorly recognized, it appearing to be his duty as a patriot to vote the Republican ticket as an act of virtue, which is its own reward.

THE bobbies should endeavor to cultivate a breast-bone such as Policeman Hanlon carries about with him. A man with something in his chest that flattens bullets may do great work as soon as he finds that he has it. Had Hanlon realized that the bullet fired at him had glanced he might have been on his feet in an instant, with a burglar in each of his fists.

ETIQUETTE does not allow the Empress of Germany to wear mourning for Great-uncle Danneskjold, who recently passed away. But people who are not royal often draw the grief line at great-uncles. The world would be in perpetual gloom if it had to weep and wear crape for all its cousins and ordinary uncles.

IF ex-Presidents ever turn over in their tombs, Thomas Jefferson must get restless rather frequently. The support of the decaying nobility of Europe from funds furnished by American girls would certainly cause that great man to writhe if he were alive.

SOME Poles in Pennsylvania supposed that a little girl who had eaten a piece of pie and gone into convulsions was bewitched. When they shall have become a little more familiar with American pie and its possibilities the Poles will be much less superstitious.

AN American pa occasionally stands out against the marriage of his daughter to a titled mendicant, but ma and the girl always have their way. The folly of man is great, but it cannot quite keep up with the folly of woman.

MR. STEAD'S assertion that the Legislature of Illinois can be bought easier than the Chicago City Council may be true. The prices that some members of a City Council put upon themselves are outrageously high.

PERHAPS the money that passed in Lemuel Eli Quigg's campaign was spent unbeknownst to Mr. Quigg. An innocent candidate is often raised to high places through the wickedness of his friends.

SOME women in Hayti have been thrown into prison for carrying news. Fortunately, Hayti is a very small part of the earth. Such horrid despotism can never reach our free Republic.

A LARGE, bright meteor has just been seen in Kansas. There is no meteor of the skies, however, that can compare with the Kansas meteor proper—which her name is Mary Ellen.

IT is certainly an injustice to the G. O. P. that it has to pay $5 for votes in any part of Chicago when the Democrats get them all over town at figures varying from 50 cents to $2.

Now statesmen play the market
While legislation waits,
And hobos fill the landscape
Of these United States.

CHICAGO very much needs that depot for Indian supplies. The Government may yet conclude to save the Windy from the disastrous consequences of the World's Fair.

TIMES are indeed depressed when a slump in the Boston shoe trade forces a Bostonian to sell his base ball stock. If the Senate does not act now nothing will move it.

THE wind has been blowing wheat out of the ground in Kansas. Many whiskers must have been more or less wrenched by the storm.

THE New Yorker who has bought the Idaho Columbian Fair building for a summer home, should hustle it out of Chicago before it takes fire.

THE citizen who gets a free building permit is not going to criticize Judge Walbridge's capacity as a jurist.

SUGAR statesmen may have some difficulty in proving that there are no flies on them.

MORE PROTESTS.

Democratic Papers of Missouri Denouncing the Snap Convention.

From the Monroe Appeal.

After all is said about Congress, the Hon. Dick Bland is the biggest man in the House, and we hope to live long enough to see honest old Dick Bland elected President of the United States.

From the Marshall Democrat-News.

The cuckoos will probably attempt to have the Democratic State Convention, which meets at Kansas City upon May 15, indorse the mugwumps. If they do they will be hissed from the hall.

From the Cole County Democrat.

The talk about the Democratic Convention of Missouri indorsing Cleveland's administration is all rot. How could it? What is to become of its Senators and Representatives in Congress if such an indorsement is given, and also what will become of the party?

From the Dunklin Democrat.

Nine-tenths of the Democrats of this State, outside of the large cities, are in favor of silver free coinage and opposed to increasing the interest-bearing debt. They are not in sympathy with Wall Street's ideas of finances, and if they are given an opportunity they will declare their satisfaction with the votes of Vest and Cockrell and the Democratic delegation on the money question.

If they stay at home and do not send reliable, tried and true delegations to the Kansas City Convention they need not be surprised if the plutocrats, money-lenders, boards of trade representatives, railroad magnates and corporation attorneys capture the convention and adopt a platform that is not an expression of 1 per cent of Missouri's Democratic country vote.

From the Moberly Monitor.

The Monitor says hold no county convention or primary until after the State convention which is fixed for the 15th of May. The Democracy of the State should rise, go to St. Louis and the 22d meet with the State committee and have the date fixed later. It will be for the interest of the party and the welfare of the State. Will they do it? The Democracy of Missouri should not be trifled with to get one or two fellows a nomination. The whole United States are looking to see what the Democracy will do. Then let us wait until the 4th of July before the Democrats of this grand State adopt a platform.

From the Centralia Guard.

It is reported that members of the State Central Committee expect to secure a sufficient number of delegates from the various counties in the State, to indorse Cleveland. This would be a rebuke to our Senators and Congressmen. This will be worked in Boone County, and for this reason we favor the sending of delegates direct from the townships, instead of meeting in a delegated convention at Columbia. It is well to send the right kind of men, who cannot be influenced.

From the Rocheport Commercial.

The State Democratic Central Committee is badly in need of a guardian. A 10-year-old boy would have known better than to have called the nominating convention as early as the 15th of May. And he would have more judgment, too, than to have selected Kansas City as the place for holding said convention. The Democratic party of Missouri is badly in need of new pilots. Unless new men are placed at the wheel the gubernatorial chair will be occupied by a Republican, at the expiration of Gov. Stone's term. Such practices as that just performed by the Central Committee is what delivered the city of St. Louis into the hands of the Republicans, and the same thing is being done with the State. "Put a rascal on horseback and he will gallop to the devil." Put any political party in charge of designing "fixers" and the same result will happen.

From the Troy Free Press.

The action of the Democratic State Committee in calling the State Convention two or three months earlier than usual has met with a storm of indignant protests from all parts of the State. No action taken by that committee in previous years has given rise to such great dissatisfaction as has this recent one. For years our State conventions have met in July or August, and the precedent has been so firmly established that to set it aside at this time is deemed a sufficient cause for the protests now being made against the action of the committee.

From the Marshall Democrat-News.

There is a well-grounded suspicion among the Democrats of Missouri that calling the State Convention for as early a date as May 15 bodes ill to those who believe in Democratic Democracy. It is said that an effort will be made by the enemies of silver and the friends of John Sherman to railroad a resolution through the convention, indorsing in toto Mr. Cleveland's administration. To do that is utterly impossible unless the Democrats refuse to go to the primaries to select delegates to the different county conventions, which in turn elect delegates to the State Convention, and allow the cuckoos, the mugwumps, the boot-lickers and John Shermans to name each other as representatives of their county Democracy. The middle of May is an inconvenient time to the rural Democracy to attend primaries and the corporate interests and the blind followers of the golden calf know it. But in this they have reckoned without their host and the Democrats will be out in force to see that Messrs. Vest, Cockrell, Bland, Heard, Arnold, Fyan, Hall, Hatch, DeArmond, Dockery, Tarsney, Morgan, Burns and Clark are not repudiated and insulted in their own State even if Mr. Cleveland did so in Washington.

A Republican View of Zachritz.

From the Globe-Democrat (Rep.).

The speech of Circuit Attorney Zachritz in the Butler case is a striking illustration of the manner in which the interests of justice are trifled with from time to time by those who are chosen to conserve and promote them. Certainly the spectacle of a prosecuting officer discrediting his principal witness and talking in favor of the prisoner is one to provoke general contempt and indignation. Such things bring reproach upon the courts, and make criminal jurisprudence a farce and a mockery. Mr. Zachritz holds the position of an agent of society for the punishment of those who break its laws, but it is quite evident that he takes a different view of the matter—for reasons he would probably not care to mention.

Brice's Banter.

From THE NEW YORK WORLD.

Senator Brice was evidently in a bantering mood when interviewed upon the Senate's amendments to the Wilson bill. "Those of us," said he, "who are anxious to see a bill passed which will repeal the McKinley law are greatly encouraged."

Considering that Senator Brice and his "Conservative" associates have been doing their utmost for five weeks to McKinleyize the Wilson bill, his irony is obvious. If the Ohio Senator had been able to restore a duty on wool his satisfaction would no doubt have been greater.

Thanks in part to Mr. Brice's labors, the McKinley taxes on iron and coal are but little more than half repealed. "Half a loaf is better than no bread." But if the Senate amendments to the Wilson bill had been proposed to the voters of the West and Northwest, how many electoral votes does Senator Brice think Mr. Cleveland would have obtained in those sections?

Divide With Zachritz.

From the Globe-Democrat (Rep.).

If Mr. Marshall F. McDonald, the astute and well-equipped criminal lawyer, received any fee or reward for the defense of James J. Butler, in the latter's trial on Saturday last, he should promptly return it as unearned and, therefore, undeserved. Circuit Attorney Zachritz, whether intentionally or unintentionally, performed the double duty of defender and prosecutor in that case.

Self-Culture Clubs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There are several self-culture clubs in our city, and wherever located they are doing much to develop the good that is in man.

They are a refining influence in any community. A library, debates upon questions that concern the welfare, the betterment of the condition of mankind, lectures upon historical, scientific and governmental questions are some of the features of the self-culture clubs; music also adds to the pleasure and entertainment of each meeting—in fact, anything that tends to elevate, educate or better the condition of the citizen is advocated and labored for by the clubs.

Everybody is welcome and made to feel at home. No personalities are permitted to be indulged in by the speakers when discussing any question before the club. Politics and religion are not permitted to be discussed. Here at these meetings everybody meets upon the same level, and when questions are being debated everyone is called upon to say something—no one is ignored.

The Rock Springs Self-Culture Club is one of the most prosperous, though the youngest, in the city. The interest manifested by the wage-worker has drawn out a large attendance at the meetings of this club. The attendance of a large number of ladies and the interest taken in the success of the club by them is very gratifying to the association.

I am informed by the officers of the club that it will not be long before they will be able to establish a gymnasium, and free reading-rooms in addition to the library already established. May these clubs, founded by men who desired to see the condition of the people improved, continue to grow and spread over our great city.

JEFF POLLARD.

West Chestnut Street.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Some are born great—some achieve greatness—others have greatness thurst upon them. The first and second of these applies to the great POST-DISPATCH, whose phenomenal success from its beginning has been devoted to the interest of the citizens of St. Louis, who from the enormous circulation of the POST-DISPATCH seem to appreciate its value. Hence this letter:

I would like to have greatness thrust upon the slow-plodding and sleepy owners of property on Chestnut street, west of Jefferson avenue, and ask them why stand ye here idle all the day?

The houses on this street in point of size, construction and beauty will compare most favorably with those of any other street, but the number of vacant houses—speaks volumes.

Will property-owners calmly sit down and see their property decrease in value day by day without an effort to save it from destruction?

Eminent lawyers, doctors and prominent business men yet live upon this street, and I venture to say, live there simply because they own their own property. Let them get together; call a meeting; debate the question; ascertain the cause and remedy the defect by organizing an improvement association, and remove the stigma from one of the finest streets south of Olive street the city of St. Louis contains.

Thousands of dollars are at stake in valuable residences, to save which a little timely attention will bring to a profitable condition. Awake—awake—awake. RIX RAX.

Paint the Poles.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

At last, some of those poles, electric light, telegraph, telephone and the like, have been relieved of their unsightly appearance, by having been painted, and I don't see why they don't make a complete job of it and treat the rest of them likewise as I think it would improve the looks of the street very much. Labor Notes.

The Trades and Labor Union held their regular fortnightly meeting yesterday afternoon at Walhalla Hall. The committee appointed to confer with the Typographical Union about the withdrawal of their delegates reported that the union had refused to receive the committee and would confer with the Trades and Labor Union in writing.

On request of Typographical Union, No. 8, a boycott was declared on the Anzeiger des Westens for refusing to "unionize" its office. On motion of Mr. Bergherm the Secretary was instructed to correspond with all the labor organizations in the world that have branches in St. Louis for the purpose of having them represented in the Trades and Labor Union.

A communication was received from New York showing that a certain clothing firm there which had reduced wages and adopted the "sweating system" was selling its goods to St. Louisans. The Grievance Committee was ordered to look the matter up.

A mass meeting of the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men was held yesterday at 604 Market street. Grand Chief Car Man W. S. Messemer of St. Joseph, who was en route to Chicago, and Messrs. Gladwell, I. T. Wilson and Goodrich spoke. The first speaker held that the laws passed since 1860, favoring the concentration of wealth, are the cause of the present difficulties. He condemned Secretary Carlisle's gold policy. He also urged the necessity of labor organization as a remedy for their ills and those of the country.

The preliminary organization of the Afro-American Ice, Coal and Feed Co., was effected yesterday afternoon by about fifty colored owners of teams who met at 1203 Morgan street. Monroe Craven was made President, and J. D. Russell, Manager. Articles of incorporation will be asked for.

JORDAN HERE.

Schrieber's Jockey Returned From San Francisco Yesterday.

HE HAS JUST BEEN RELEASED FROM AN INEBRIATE ASYLUM.

California Corn Juice Too Much for Him—Ned Hanlon Does Not Fancy the Recent Changes in the League Base Ball Rules—Harry Hill in Want—Sporting News.

Frank Jordan, Barney Schrieber's premier jockey, returned from San Francisco yesterday and reported to Trainers Bert Hart and John Jeffries, who are in charge of that division of the Schrieber stable wintering at the Fair Grounds. Schrieber himself and his first trainer, "Bone Doctor" John Robbins, will arrive here with the string that has been campaigned at "Frisco" all winter, the early part of next month. The Schrieber stable will include nearly forty head of horses this season, and next to Leigh and Rose, the bookmaker - owner will have the largest string on the Western circuit. Jordan drifted back to his old drinking habit in San Francisco, and a few weeks ago Schrieber had to have him confined in an inebriate asylum. Here the boy was boiled out and straightened up, after which his employer shipped him back to St. Louis. Before he commenced to drink again Jordan's riding was the feature of the Bay District track meeting. His earnings were enormous, and shortly before Schrieber put him under lock and key he expressed some $2,000 home to his mother. Felix Carr has been doing all of Schrieber's riding at San Francisco since Jordan's disgrace. Unless the latter mends his ways, Carr may supercede him as first jockey for the stable. Besides Jordan and Carr, Schrieber has that promising lightweight, Johnnie Smith, under contract until next June. Jordan was looking well when he arrived here in company with his valet yesterday. He will gallop the Schrieber horses at the Fair Grounds every morning until the regular season is inaugurated. It is also probable he will be seen in the saddle at Madison and East St. Louis occasionally. Frank was the star jockey at East Side last winter.

* * *

They were telling stories of queer races at Roby—a group of track employes—when Judge Clem Creveling walked up, writes Joe Hooker. "Very good, boys," remarked the Judge, as one man concluded, "but I could tell you one of a match race at the Cote Brilliante track in St. Louis that is nearly as good as the story of the six starters and no animals left to finish. It seems that a horse named Luke Clark was racing at the Cote, and his owner never missed an opportunity to tell what he could do. One day a man who had an old gray horse between his buggy shafts listened to the horseman's praise of his animal and then remarked: 'I'll race you six furlongs for $100 a side.' The match was quickly made and the animals were prepared. Luke Clark looked a winner from that moment, but when the horses got to the post more fun was occasioned than the track habitues had had for many months. The flag was dropped and Luke Clark sprang out in front, followed by the gray horse, who soon showed the worse for wear. Suddenly Luke Clark stopped. The jockey fought with him, spurred him and administered a dozen doses of the whip, but Luke would not go on. Meanwhile the jockey upon the gray animal was in trouble. His mount, too, had stopped and refused to budge. Luke Clark sawed back and forth over the track, but took great care not to advance a dozen feet. The gray horse leaped a high fence and started for the Franklin avenue gate, but was stopped and brought back to the track. His jockey remounted just fifteen minutes later, dug his spurs into the gray fellow's sides and finished first. Luke Clark made up his mind to have a walkover in that race, or else felt disgusted at being pitted against a buggy horse, and it was not until the winner had been in the barn twenty minutes that he broke and concluded the queer one-sided race."

The first 3-year-old stake of importance run east of the Rocky Mountains this year will be the Crescent City derby, which is to be decided at New Orleans on the 31st inst. Fraulein, Rhett Goode, Fatality, Florence, Clara Bauer, St. Pat, Ella, Buchwa Martinet, The Bully and a number of others of lesser importance are in it. Though called a derby, the distance of the race is but a mile. But the name "derby" doesn't count for anything in America outside of Chicago, Louisville and Latonia.

HARRY HILL IN WANT.

Sad Condition of a Famous Pugilistic Character—Ring Gossip.

Harry Hill of New York, well known in pugilistic circles the world over for the past twenty years, is in destitute circumstances and his friends are endeavoring to raise enough cash by popular subscription to keep him in comfort during the rest of his days. Hill was for years the proprietor of the Exchange in Houston street, New York, and figured as a theatrical manager, stakeholder, referee and backer of prize-fighters. In 1863 he was connected with the prize fight between Mike McCoole of St. Louis and Joe Coburn for the championship, and later he engaged in a wrestling match with Uzrile Prickett. In 1866 Hill was the champion collar-and-elbow wrestler of America, having won that title by defeating Lew Ainsworth of New Haven, Conn. In 1868 he was one of Billy Edwards' backers when the latter was matched to fight Sam Collyer for $2,000 and the lightweight championship of America. In 1871 Hill was final stakeholder in the international prize fight between Jem Mace and Joe Coburn for $5,000 and the championship.

During 1871, '72 and '73 boxing tournaments were brought off in Harry Hill's Theater, and Jem Mace, Arthur Chambers, Tim Collins, Prof. Donnelly of London, and all the great fistic celebrities of the time boxed there. In 1882 Harry Hill was made stakeholder of the Ryan and Sullivan fight. He also held the stakes in the Sullivan and Tug Wilson fight, and acted as referee when they fought in Madison Square Garden, New York. At the time William Sheriff, the Prussian, fought at Flushing, L. I., Harry Hill was referee. By this time Hill had amassed a fortune, but later he lost it in steamboat speculations.

Pugilistic Pointers.

Peter Jackson will begin training for his fight with Corbett after he closes his theatrical season in this city next week.

It is published in New York that Ed Nail, the colored friend of George Dixon, offers to bet anywhere from $25 to $5,000 that Jackson will win over Corbett.

Eddie Doyle, an English lightweight who arrived in New York a few weeks ago and who intended to challenge Jack McAuliffe, met George Dixon in New York Thursday night and he quit in one minute.

A New York paper has the following paragraph: "Peter Jackson has been attacked with the hoodoo measurement and physical examination fever. He had better beware. A number of Harvard professors figured out John L. Sullivan a positive winner. They unfortunately gauged the force of his blows by an instrument that could neither [illegible] his own way nor his habit."

Alec Greggains has left Boston for Minneapolis, where he is to meet Jack [illegible] of Providence, R. I., in a finish fight on April 30, before the members of the Twin City Athletic Club. The men are to receive 60 per cent of the gross receipts. Greggains intends to return to Boston with his family and will permanently reside there in the future.

ARE VERY NONSENSICAL.

Ned Hanlon's Idea of the Recent Changes in the Rules.

Ned Hanlon, the Baltimore manager and captain, declares that the recent work of the rules committee is very nonsensical, and asserts that the magnates should turn the rule-making business over to practical players. Hanlon says:

"In the first place rule 38, that a bunt is a ball hit upon the ground in the infield, is unnecessary. It does not define a bunt at all. According to the rules a bunt is any ball hit to an infielder, when, on the contrary, every well-posted base ball man knows that a bunt is a ball 'dropped' or 'dumped' in front of the plate with the obvious attempt by the batter to beat it out. I suggested that the bunt be penalized by a rule to read in this simple way: 'Any bunt that goes foul to be called a strike.' There was no necessity of a rule defining the bunt, and the work of the magnates has made things very complicated. As the rule stands only players like Ward, Tiernan, Childs, Duffy and one or two others will attempt bunting, because they have the trick down to a science. But the other players, who are in the habit of bungling the bunt, will hit the ball out. It is the public that demands the players to hit the ball hard with men on bases, and this rule will serve to give the public what it wants."

The Boston and Cincinnati teams were playing a close and brilliant game at Cincinnati, in '92, when Capt. Comiskey made a play that saved the game at the time for his team, writes Tim Murnade. Hugh Duffy was at third in the last half of the ninth inning, with the score a tie. There was one man out and a good, sure hitter at the bat. The ball was hit well to the right of Comiskey, who was playing first base. He took the ball with his right, after a jump, and before getting his feet on the ground had sent it to the home plate in time to catch the fleet-footed Boston man. The ball was handled with two motions, which necessitated great playing to execute. It was the proper time to take a chance, and the great Cincinnati captain was equal to the emergency.

SEEKING INFORMATION.

Walter Camp Wants Old Foot Ball Players to Tell Their Experiences.

Walter Camp, the great exponent of foot ball at Yale, has issued a circular letter to all old foot ball players, which is self explanatory, and reads as follows:

MY DEAR SIR—Inclosed is a brief statement of the work undertaken by an old Oxonian at a time when charges against boating in England were even more serious than those against foot ball now in our own country.

With the co-operation of those of us who are old players it seems possible at this time to perform a similar work for American college foot ball as did Mr. John W. Woogan in 1873 for English university rowing.

The captains of our old teams have gladly written quite fully in reply to questions, and if the individual players will, on behalf of the game, sacrifice enough time to write something of their experiences in answer to the enclosed questions the results will be well worth laying before the college world.

The writer fully appreciates the fact that it is asking much of a man to request him to do this, but relying upon the fact that the old foot ball men have always stood together in defense of their sport, he hopes that you will favor us with an answer some time during the coming week or 10 days. Yours very sincerely. WALTER CAMP.

The statement enclosed concludes with these questions:

How many years did you play?
What was the most serious injury you received?
Was the injury permanent?
Was it received in a match or practice?
Had you been properly trained?

St. Teresa's, 1; St. Lawrence O'Toole's, 0.

The St. Teresa Sodality eleven defeated the St. Lawrence O'Toole Sodality team for the local association foot ball championship by a score of 1 to 0 at New Sportman's Park yesterday. The St. Teresas forced the ball through the goal defended by the St. Lawrence O'Tooles a few seconds before Referee Fulford blew his whistle for the end of the second half of the game and a drawn battle was narrowly averted. The St. Teresas captured the championship of the Sodality League this winter, while the St. Lawrence O'Tooles won the Lindell League pennant.

Sporting Notes.

Michael C. Murphy, who has trained Yale athletic teams since 1886, has signed a contract to train the track athletes of the New York Athletic Club. Murphy will still coach Yale teams during the winter and train the New Yorkers during the summer months, beginning with June 1.

Henry W. Farnam of Boston won the billiard championship of Yale University by defeating L. S. Sadler of New York in the final match in a tournament which had been in progress a fortnight.

M. C. Brown, the South End trap shot, and James Haggerty shot a match at the Carondelet Gun Club's park yesterday afternoon. The match was won by M. C. Brown, who killed ninety-one out of one hundred birds. The birds were strong and the match was an exciting one.

BRICK VS. KNIFE.—Joe Mitchell, Luke Jones and Tate Winchester, all colored, had a fight at Twelfth and Linden streets last night, and Jones hit Mitchell on the head with a brick, inflicting a gash two inches long. Winchester cut Mitchell on the left hand. Mitchell was sent to the City Hospital. His assailants escaped.

HARUGARI MEETING.—The various lodges of the German order of Harugari held a musical and literary festival yesterday at Eleventh and Carr streets. State Secretary George Hoefel read a lengthy report of the society's work and Grand International Secretary E. Knickmeier delivered an oration. The lodge has about 2,000 members in Missouri.

A SALOON ROBBED.—The saloon of Tillis & Sasson at 307 North Eighth street was robbed of $15.30 in cash taken from the cash register Sunday night. The thieves were about to attack the safe, but they broke a quantity of dishes and became frightened. It is believed that they hid in the cellar in the early part of the night and gained entrance to the saloon by cutting a panel in the door on the head of the inside stairway.

BISHOP BONACUM'S CHARGES

They Will Not Be Preferred Until He Has Returned Home.

The charges which Bishop Thomas Bonacum of Lincoln, Neb., is about to prefer against Rev. Fr. Phelan of this city will not be filed until Bishop Bonacum returns home. This information is from Mr. E. T. Farish, who has been retained as counsel by Bishop Bonacum. "As soon as the Bishop returns home," said Mr. Farish to-day, "he will prepare the charges and send them to St. Louis to be filed with the Chancellor, Rev. Fr. Van der Sanden. The Chancellor will then notify Archbishop Kain, who will issue a citation to Fr. Phelan. The latter will then make answer or file exceptions, as he sees fit. The Archbishop will then appoint a notary to take the depositions of all the witnesses wherever they may be. When all the testimony is in the papers will be filed with Archbishop Kain, who will pass upon the case as a judge would in an equity case. There will be no trial in the usual sense of the term, and the proceedings at the hearings will be private. However, the finding will be given as much publicity as possible, on account of the publicity given to the scandal which has brought on the action."

FAN TAN PLAYERS.

The Police Make a Big Haul on South Eighth Street.

For some time past those detectives who have been on the watch in the neighborhood of South Eighth street, between Market and Walnut streets, in order to swoop down on the iniquitous opium joints, have noticed crowds gathering at a grocery store kept by Jeu Jock at No. 16 South Eighth street at a certain hour of the night. They knew that it could not be all in the way of legitimate business. So last evening about 9 o'clock a strong force of police officers and detectives about twenty-five in number swooped down on the establishment, whose shop name is Quong Shun Wo, ostensibly dealing in fancy Chinese groceries, but which is really a combination of fan-tan den, opium joint and policy shop. Some fifty-six Chinamen, who were found there engaged in smoking and gambling, were nabbed without any resistance and packed into wagons in which they were hauled to the holdover. The complete paraphernalia for running the so-called "white pigeon lottery," as well as the layout for playing the fascinating game of fan-tan was captured and will be used as evidence in the trial to-morrow. They consist of packages of printed paper, four tin pans used in drawing, a lot of beads used for chips, as well as pieces of cardboard used to represent money and two large boxes full of Chinese dominoes, besides lamps, pipes, etc., used in hitting the pipe.

Capt. Boyd did not know what warrants to apply for—whether for running and gambling in a lottery or a policy shop. But he at last decided to bring the charge of playing China policy and fan-tan against the following prisoners:

Sam Lee, Ah Sam, Ah Jim, Ah Gin, Joe Can, Hon Pong, Jon Wing, Ah Pun, Jeu Jung, Ah Sung, Jen Goy, Quong Lee, Lung Jim, Sam Lee, Joe Jim, Ah Yow, Wah Lee, Jeu Lung, Charlie Son, Wong Joe, Jeu Joy, Chas. Lee, Low Gue, Lung Jou, Lou Bark, Sing Lee, Ah Yung, Jeu Ghan, Jeu Lay, Charlie Joe, Ah Sam, Jeu Jang, Sing Lee, Jeu Sin, Jeu May, Jeu Quong, Jeu Jeufson, Ah Chang, Charley Jim, Joe Jake, Lon Sing, Joe Sang, Ah Lee, Lee Fook, Ah Sang, Ye Gark, Ah Sam, Sing Lay, Joe Young, E. John, Hop Thong, Hop Lion, Sam Wah, Lamb Sam, Hong Lay and Jeu Chong.

They will be tried on those charges in the police court to-morrow.

It is supposed that many of the above-names are fictitious, or simply shop names, and it is said also that some of the accused are members of various Christian Sunday-schools in this city and vicinity.

The raid was adroitly planned and deftly and neatly executed by Chief of Detectives Desmond, Sergeants Gillispie and Lyons and Detectives Danaher, Bambrick, Schoppe, McGrath, O'Connell and Scully.

The Chinamen have retained Gov. Charles P. Jonnson to defend them. He bailed them all out and will have them in the Police Court ready for trial to-morrow morning.

Unable to Appear.

The name Joe Mitchell was on the docket at the Second District Police Court this morning opposite a disturbance of the peace charge, but his case was continued, as he is in the City Hospital suffering from a fractured skull. He had a fight at Twelfth and Linden streets last night with Luke Jones and Tute Winchester, colored, and was badly beaten up. Jones and Winchester escaped.

CANNOT PURIFY IT.

City Filters Unable to Cope With the Present Muddy Water.

The city at present is receiving its annual spring supply of that dark brown fluid, known as Missouri water. It is peculiar in its composition, being distinctly sui generis, and found nowhere except in this section of the Mississippi Valley. When the snow begins to melt in the Rocky Mountains and the ice gorges of the Upper Missouri and Mississippi Rivers break the waters in both of these streams rise phenomenally fast from the torrents poured into them by the hundreds of creeks and small tributaries for which they are the outlet, and the result is the formation of this very peculiar species of water.

It has about the consistency of ordinary soup, the basis of which is a black, clayey loam. The ordinary filter which works fairly well on city water the balance of the year is brought to a dead stand still when this beautiful mucilaginous fluid floats down the river in the early spring.

Before it can be used for household or domestic purposes it should be left to settle for at least twelve hours and then be put through a filter.

When Water Commissioner Holman was asked this morning if no remedy could be applied at the Water-works, he replied that there was none.

"The capacity of the old settling basins at Bissell's Point," he said, "is not sufficient. The water has not time to settle properly before it must be sent out for distribution. When we get the new basins at the Chain of Rocks in operation we can meet emergencies like the present, but as it is there is no remedy."

Mr. Holman has also advocated a system of filter beds for the new Water-works, but as these beds will cost over $1,000,000, relief from this source cannot be looked forward to in the near future.

Fortunately this peculiar condition of the water does not last for any length of time, and the only remedy appears to be to use as little of it as possible.

Gold for Cuba.

New York, March 12.—The steamer La Champagne brought 845,000 francs gold in transit to Cuba.

AT THE THEATERS.

"In Mizzoura" Makes a Hit at the Grand —Other Attractions.

Mr. Nat C. Goodwin, in Augustus Thomas' new play, "In Mizzoura," opened a two-weeks' engagement at the Grand last night to a crowded house.

Before the close of the first act was reached a "hit" so marked had been scored that the magnetism of it thrilled and electrified the audience until thereafter it responded to the touch of playwright and actor like some superb instrument.

Through each act of "In Mizzoura" there ran successive waves of applause, provoked almost against the will of those who applauded; people engrossed in the sweep of a strong dramatic story vivified by character studies so faithful and touches of nature so true that it became real life.

At the close of each act this applause deepened into a storm which subsided only when the star and his company appeared before the curtain in acknowlegment of what was an imperative call.

When the play had ended and the audience dispersed, two sentences of a little speech made by Mr. Goodwin between the third and fourth acts seemed to have sounded the keynote proper to the occasion.

The star had said earnestly: "I consider Mr. Augustus Thomas, author of 'In Mizzoura,' the coming greatest playwright of his age, if he is not that already, and I rejoice in the success of this play because I believe that what American audiences want are good, wholesome American plays, written by American playwrights and played by American companies."

Mr. Goodwin himself scored an artistic triumph which carries him out of the dramatic field in which all his life-work heretofore has been done. As Jim Radburn, Sheriff of Pike County, Mo., he steps into the front rank of American actors. This is true because in his creation of the character of that homely hero he wins to its support the laughter and the tears of those who see his work, and when the last curtain falls on Jim Radburn's story the modest figure of the Missouri Sheriff has become an indelible memory in the minds of his audience.

This is the only test of the success of a stage creation. Up to this period of his professional career Mr. Goodwin had not been credited with the artistic earnestness necessary to successfully undergo such a test.

Back of Mr. Goodwin's triumph is that of his company. As the story of "In Mizzoura," with its charming detail of character studies, is presented by star and company, it is an American classic.

"In Mizzoura" is stronger than Mr. Thomas' earlier success, "Alabama," because it is truer. In every line, in every movement, in every effect reached, it has the breath of life arising from what seems a loving capacity for untiring study of human nature as it came before the playwright's eyes, the human nature which he met in his own daily life.

There are three characters developed by the story of "In Mizzoura," which, had they been drawn in narrates instead of dramatic form, would have been reasonably assured of literary immortality. In order of true faithfulness to life they are respectively the characters of 'Liz'beth Vernon, Jim Radburn and Dave.

It will be difficult for many who see "In Mizzoura" to indorse this definite declaration, because it is always difficult to recognize great achievements at short range. Nevertheless, it will be worth while to run over in one's mind the characters of the stage or of fiction that have already been accorded this belief of immortality, and measure which of them has more of the real breath of life than those just named. They are homely people, the three of them, but they are living, breathing people, not merely "stage studies."

Mr. Thomas is writing for larger audiences than those composed of people who go to see his plays now. He is studying certain types of American life and character as native life and character have not been studied by other writers of his generation. As he grows stronger and more confident of himself be is giving his creations form and being with the sure and controlling touch of a master hand. Work of this kind is work that lives beyond the ordinary term of life of stage successes.

In grasp of dramatic situation and the secret of continued dramatic interest Mr. Thomas' power is deepening. "In Mizzoura" is the proof of this assertion. Its dramatic form and story are eminently correct.

But, although strongly accentuated at times, the story is not melodramatic. Its essence is not the reminiscence of a locally famous express robbery which runs through the play. It is the tender theme of the self-sacrificing love of Jim Radburn for Kate Vernon, the Missouri wheelwright's daughter, the girl whom Radburn himself has helped to so educate that for a time his own uncouthness repels that love of hers upon which his happiness is centered. The artistic beauty of the story lies in the daring simplicity of its surroundings. It receives its entire development in the humble households of Wheelwright Joe Vernon and Sheriff Jim Radburn of Bowling Green, Pike County, Mo., and the one only effort for scenic effect is to obtain absolute faithfulness in the detail of those surroundings as they were studied in real life. The characters used in the development of the story are those native to the scenes where the story is located, the wheelwright politician and his family and shop, assistants; Jim Radburn and his sister, Emily; the people of the little village of Bowling Green. With these few, but splendidly true accessories, is told the touching idyl of how Jim Radburn so loved Kate Vernon that he surrendered his political future for her father's sake and risked his official honor for her lover's sake.

In assuming the character of Jim Radburn Mr. Goodwin has had the artistic strength necessary to do the two things essential to a genuine "creation." He has been able, first, to study unerringly some wisely-chosen original of Jim Radburn; he has been able also to train himself so thoroughly in this character that its spirit envelopes him like a second self. Mr. Goodwin is for the time being Jim Radburn in the flesh, and Jim Radburn is a true creation of American character. His honesty, his simplicity of unconscious heroism, his "every-dayness" of manner, his rusticity of speech, his dress, are all reproduced with admirable faithfulness to life. He steps in view of his audience a flesh and blood country Sheriff, a character from a Missouri village truer than ever drawn by Mark Twain, a quaint hero as vital as any ever drawn by Bret Harte. The spirit of this character Mr. Goodwin never permits to leave him for a moment; the result is that the figure stands without a break in the consistent impression it makes on those whom it faces.

Of the company supporting Mr. Goodwin it should be said that there is not a weak or unsatisfactory member. The characters of Kate Vernon and Robert Travers, taken respectively by Miss Lilia Vane and Mr. Wm. Beach, have not as true a ring as the others of the cast, but this is the result of the story as it touches them, not of the delineation. Of those characters "racy of the soil" and peculiar to the locale of the story, too high praise cannot be spoken. They have that same fidelity to nature which marks Jim Radburn himself. The roles of Blacksmith Jo Vernon, (Mr. Burr McIntosh), Col. Bollinger, (Mr. Robert G. Wilson) Dave, (Mr. Louis Payne); Mrs. Jo Vernon, (Mrs. Jean Clara Walters); 'Liz'beth Vernon, (Miss Minnie Dupree), and Em'ly Radburn, (Miss Mae E. Wood), are delightful portrayals of breathing originals as found in the Missouri village from the life of which Mr. Thomas drew the inspiration for "In Mizzoura." Perhaps the most pronounced bit of the play, next to that made by the star himself, is made by Miss Minnie Dupree as 'Liz'beth Vernon. It is an exquisite piece of work.

Two of the scenes of "In Mizzoura" are masterpieces of artistic fidelity. The first is that of the second act, the interior of Jo Vernon's blacksmith shop; the second is the front of Jim Radburn's home, with the Missouri landscape of rolling country spreading out before it, an old country road winding past the gate.

The vivid impression left by "In Mizzoura," after its story has been told, and with the dark curtain shutting off its people from view, is that Mr. Augustus Thomas has taken the life of a Missouri country town and placed it bodily on the stage, in character, in atmosphere, in scene and spirit, absolutely true. This is possible only to genius.

KELLAR AT THE HAGAN.

Kellar, the magician, opened his engagement at the Hagan last night to a good house and gave an exhibition satisfying to all who revel in the wonders of sleight-of-hand and apparent magic. Some of the tricks done by Kellar are wonderful in their illusions, and his entertainment is interesting from beginning to end. Last night the features of the performance were "Astarte, the Maid of the Moon, "The Cassadaga Propaganda," the great disappearing illusion, "Oh," "Flyto," and "Karmos," the magician in the latter act being assisted by his wife, a very skillful lieutenant. The attraction will doubtless have a good week at the Hagan.

LILIPUTIANS AT THE OLYMPIC.

Standing-room only was the rule at the Olympic last night for the opening of the second week of the Liliputions. A most enjoyable performance of the "Trip to Mars was given, and there is apparently no slackening of interest in the work of this, their latest production. The sale of seats for this week has already been very large and a most successful engagement is now an assured fact.

"EIGHT BELLS" AT POPE'S.

"Eight Bells," the nautical pantomimic comedy of the Byrne Bros., drew good matinee and evening houses at Pope's yesterday for the opening of its week's engagement. The production has been seen before in St. Louis, but has been improved since its last presentation here, and it pleased its audience yesterday. The great novel mechanical effect of the production is the scene representing the state-room interiors of a steamship making the passage from England to France, the tossing and plunging incident to such travel, the rising of the storm and the capsizing of the vessel after a series of revolutions in the trough of the water, which are certainly unequalled in maritime annals. There are many other ingenious scenic effects and considerable fun in the play, which, presented by a company equal to its demands, proved amusing.

"FINNEGAN'S BALL" AT HAVLIN'S.

Murray and Mack in "Finnigan's Ball" opened to fair houses at Havlin's yesterday afternoon and evening. The two stars are given ample opportunity for display of their talents as farce comedians by the story of the play, and are supported by a company of which the brightest lights following the stars were Mr. W. Fredericks as Weary Walker, the tramp; Richard E. Lynch as Willie Sells, and soubrette Gracie Cummings as Katie Casey. Murray and Mack were given an enthussastic reception by the two Havlin audiences of yesterday.

STANDARD—ROGERS BROS.' FUN MAKERS.

The Rogers Bros.' company of fun makers began a week's engagement at the Standard yesterday with matinee and evening performances. Good houses were the rule, and a really excellent entertainment was offered by this organization, the bill of variety and specialty features being unusually bright. Among the most notable acts were those of the Speck brothers in a Liliputian burlesque of Corbett and Mitchell, Annie Hart in character songs, the Rogers brothers in German dialect, Swift and Chase in musical comedy and the closing one-act skit of "The Dutch Heroes."

Petty Offenders Fined.

Mike Austero was fined $10 by Judge Paxson this morning for smashing a window in David Warsaw's saloon at the northeast corner of Francis street and Easton avenue, because he wouldn't give him a drink about 1 o'clock this morning.

Officer Simcox arrested Dave Anderson and "Sis" Anderson, his "woman," for fighting in Clabber alley last night. Dave got $10 from Judge Paxson. Officer Doyle arrested Mary Shores and John Ellis for scrapping in the Eighth street yard and they got a similar fine.

Officer Flaherty of the Fourth District saw Joseph Miller on the second floor of a vacant house, No. 2006 North Broadway Saturday afternoon and arrested him. He had with him a big bag loaded with a small whisky bottle. Judge Paxson gave him $10 for tresspassing.

He Assaulted an Officer.

Officer James Jones of the Fourth District had Michael Costello fined $5 by Judge Paxson for disturbing the peace. The policeman testified that Costello approached him on Ninth street and St. Louis avenue on Feb. 22 and, without provocation, brutally assaulted him. He then fled and kept safely out of sight until yesterday afternoon, when Officer Jones spied him and ran him in.

Got in the Wrong Premises.

August Koppleman, a nice-looking young man, was before Judge Paxson this morning, charged with tresspassing. Private Watchman Bethage testified that he found him in Paul Major's yard, No. 1604 Franklin avenue, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Koppleman explained to the judge, however, that he had been invited to a party and had gotten the wrong number, and the court discharged him.

GAS-PIPE BOMBS.

The Villainous Parcel That Was Carried by John Kelly.

New York, March 12.—Three pieces of iron pipe capped and primed and supposed to be charged with high explosives. were found in a parcel carried by John Kelly of 583 Grand street, who was arrested while prawling around Florist Amman's gardens with another man in Harlem about 3 a. m. Besides the gas-pipe bombs, which are about eight inches long, there were nine paper cartridges in the parcel. Amman's is one of the most extensive hot-houses in the city. In the neighborhood are the finest apartment houses in Harlem.

The men were conversing in low tones when Officer Connors made a dart for the man with the bundle and grabbed him by the collar. The other man dashed away in the darkness. The man who Connors held tried to pass the bundle to the other man before he ran, but was prevented from doing so by the policeman.

"What have you got in that bundle?" asked the policeman.

"Oh, it's only a bundle of clothes."

"Well, let's take a walk to the house," said the officer, taking the bundle from the man with one hand and grasping his prisoner firmly by the collar. At the station-house the bundle was laid upon the sergeant's desk. When the latter unrolled the piece of newspaper and discovered what it contained he staggered back and nearly collapsed with horror.

The Sergeant on making the discovery immediately notified Inspector Conlin, and the latter hurried to the station-house and sent for an expert to examine the find. It is asserted that each of the paper cartridges contain enough dynamite to blow down an ordinary house. The bombs have not yet been subjected to a test.

Kelly would say little. He is a laborer and is ignorant. The police are in hopes of capturing the man who was with him.

A Housebreaker Shot Dead.

Mulberry, Ind., March 12.—John Rodgers was shot to death on Saturday night by a member of the Mulberry Horsethief Association. A housebreaking had been reported and Rodgers was suspected. RIO INSURGENTS.

Fleets Preparing for Operations Against Them.

Rio de Janeiro, March 12.—Representatives of the foreign powers were officially notified yesterday that operations against the insurgents in the Bay of Rio de Janiero would be resumed after the expiration of forty-eight hours.

As already cabled, the Government fleet is off the entrance of Rio de Janiero Bay, a portion of the fleet, consisting of the Nictheroy, Destroyer and Aurora, having taken up a position in a bay at the entrance between Fort St. John and the Sugar Loaf Fort, preparatory, it is believed, to bombarding Fort Villegaignon. The remainder of the Government fleet, consisting of the American Parnahyba and the torpedo boats purchased in Germany, are further outside the entrance of the harbor.

CANNOT GET THE FUNDS.

Connecticut's Supreme Court Decides Against Iron Hall National Receiver.

The Supreme Court of Errors of Connecticut has rendered a decision in the Iron Hall case in which the claims of National Receiver James F. Failey, appointed by the Indiana courts, for funds in the hands of the local receiver for Connecticut, Edwin L. Scofield, are denied. The decision, which was rendered on March 8, is the first given by a court of last resort in the matter, and is of especial interest here where a similar proceeding brought by Receiver Failey is pending. John Fawcett vs. The Supreme Sitting of the Order of the Iron Hall is the style of the case and the opinion was written by Judge Baldwin. In the decision the Superior Court is advised to direct the distribution of the funds in the hands of Edwin L. Scofield, receiver, after payment of necessary costs and charges, among the holders of benefit certificates issued by the Supreme Sitting of the Order of the Iron Hall to them as members of branches of the order organised in Connecticut and outstanding and obligatory upon said corporation on July 29, 1892, payment to be made out of the fund received from the trustees of each local branch to the certificate-holders of that branch, in proportion to the amount paid by them respectively for assessments laid upon them as holders of such certificates, deducting from such dividend, in each case, such amount, if any, as the certificate-holder may have previously received from said order by reason of his rights under his certificate and to dismiss and disallow the claim of James F. Failey, receiver of said corporation by appointment of the Superior Court for Marion County in the State of Indiana, to said funds or any part thereof.

STRUCK BY AN ENGINE.

Henry Behring, a Teamster, Killed in the Union Depot Yards.

About 9 o'clock this morning Henry Behring, a teamster, who for several months has been in the employ of the Grafman Dairy Co. at 2026 Franklin avenue, was almost instantly killed in the Union Depot yards, about 100 yards west of Twelfth street. Behring was driving across the Wabash tracks, which are very close together, and when his wagon had bestraddled the two sets of rails, a switch engine backing up from the East and a Wabash locomotive No. 345 attached to an incoming train from the West, struck the vehicle. The force of the collision threw Behring from the lofty seat of the small stake-wagon and he landed headforemost on one of the rails. He was picked up and laid on one side with a coat under his head. He was still alive when picked up, but died a short while afterward. His body was removed to the Morgue. Behring is 38 years old and lives at the corner of Spring avenue and Natural Bridge road. He is a married man.

FORTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Celebration of the Founding of the Great Wm. Barr Dry Goods House.

To-day "Barr's" is decorated with flowers and thronged with patrons, for they are having their annual celebration of the foundation of their house, forty-five years ago. Time has wrought great changes, and their mammoth establishment of to-day presents a marvelous contrast to the modest little store of almost half a century ago, when 2,000 square feet of room space in a rough little building on Third and Market streets more than sufficed for the goods required by the simple inhabitants of the little French village. Now 161,000 square feet of floor space gives scarce room enough in the four-story building in which they display their superb stock of goods of every description, gathered from every quarter of the globe, representing a cash outlay of over $2,000,000. So complete is their stock that a lady need never go outside of the doors for any article of apparel for herself or children or furnishing goods for husband or sons or household goods for use or for the embellishment of her home. She can even be served with a delightful lunch in the basement, while she looks over her memorandum. Does she want shoes, hosiery, underwear? Here they are, from the plainest articles to the daintiest fabrics of silk. Is it a dress? Here are prints, percales, lovely ginghams, lawns and French goods, with their suitable trimmings in braids or embroideries; or the more substantial wool or silk and wool, plain or in all of the fancy weaves and richest coloring. Here are also satins and silks of every desirable manufacture, quality and color. Here are silks from China, India and Japan and the choicest novelties from the French looms at prices that defy competition; and for their garniture, ribbons and laces and rich passementeries. Here are handkerchiefs, gloves, parasols and fans, harmonizing perfectly in color and quality. En passant she will linger over the linens, embroidered bed-sets, table linens and art squares, and tablecloths and napkins of heavy satin in pale blue, or pink, or yellow, costing perhaps $100, while in the basement may be seen the cut glass, silver and fine china, all of the appointments of an ideal table. Upon the second floor, however, is the woman's kingdom, the dainty lingerie of silk and lace or fine muslin and embroidery the silken underwear and superb imported gowns, costing from $65 to $100, one, a symphony in heliotrope and white, with velvet and lace, another of silk and wool of a rich dahlia shade, with sharp contrast of creamy lace and velvet, all of them with overskirts real or simulated. A very smart gown is of exquisite shades of eminence and brown brocade, with picturesque panniers and sleeves and bertha. And here are lovely things in dimities and muslins and nobby suits for street wear, in wool, with coats and mannish vests of Marseilles. For all of these lovely gowns there are hats, simple and plain, or picturesque, all of them stylish, with their turned up brims and high bows and plumes. One large hat of black straw and jet has a wreath of pink roses beneath the turned up brim, a plaque of silver gray has a frill of black lace around the edge, a jetted crown and Prince of Wales feathers, with rich solferino roses at the back. Mme. Pouyanne is represented in a large hat of straw and jet, combined with cream lace and plumes and flowers.

In spring capes and jackets for ladies' wear there are many high novelties, stylish confections of silk and lace and jet. Moire is in high favor this season, and capes of moire and lace are very effective; stylish jackets have the collars of moire, and perhaps the large sleeves also, and bows of broad moire ribbon edged with lace have been introduced wherever practicable.

Fot the little people "Barr's" has omitted nothing this season. Mothers need no longer bother with seamstress and patterns. Here is everything ready made, from the simple or elaborate layette for baby, as daintily made and trimmed as if done at home, up to outfits for demoiselles of 14 or 15 years of age. For little girls from 1 to 5 years, may be had gingham frocks, from 50 cents to $3, plain or prettily trimmed with braids or embroideries. There are frocks of fine muslins and embroideries, and for the little toddlers, as well as larger children, there are most stylish coats of navy blue cloth or light colors or fine white crepon, trimmed with deep capes and ruffles. A nobby little coat is a double-breasted reefer made either of cloth or marseilles, and the little "Dorothea" sun bon nets provided for little ones of all ages are very picturesque affairs of fine gingham or white muslin, with deep ruffles edged with lace or embroidery. It is worth several trips to Barr's to see all of these things.

A HAT FULL OF MONEY.

The Colored Preacher Collected It, but Thieves Were About.

LATHAM, Ala., March 12.—At Zion Baptist Church last night Rev. Dink Jenkins, colored, called for a collection and started through the congregation, hat in hand. When he reached the door the hat was pretty full of nickels. At this point Nat Haywood, another negro, struck the parson full in the face and several other negroes jumped on him and beat him badly, at the same time pocketing the money, which had scattered over the floor. Haywood was arrested. The rest escaped. The condition of the preacher is critical.

AN M. & O. ROBBER.

Sheriff Langley Thinks He Has One in Custody.

RIVER PIRATES FIRED ON WHILE RAISING THEIR PLUNDER.

They All Escaped, However, Without Injury—School Trustees Confess Judgment in Favor of Martin D. Baker—Items of Interest From the East Side.

A man giving the name of Wilkerson, who is in Sheriff Langley's custody, is suspected of complicity in the last Mobile & Ohio hold-up, which occurred a short time since at Forest Lawn, three miles southeast of East St. Louis. Wilkerson was arrested yesterday at Pinckneyville on the charge of stealing three overcoats from a freight train on which he was stealing a ride out of Belleville. His appearance tallies with the description of one of the gang who were implicated in the last hold-up, and the Sheriff thinks he may have had some connection with the affair. Notification of the arrest has been sent to the M. & O. officials, with a request that they send some of the train crew to identify the prisoner.

RIVER PIRATES FIRED ON.

The police were notified late last night that a plant of stolen tobacco had been located in a stable near the Pittsburg dyke on the river bank south of the city. Officer Fahey was detailed to take charge of the plant and watch for the thieves, who were supposed to be river pirates, but while he was on the way to the dyke the Air Line watchman sighted the robbers and scared them away before the officer arrived. There were five of the pirates, and they came across the river in a skiff from the foot of Chouteau avenue. They were seen to enter the stable by the coachman, who waited for them to come out with the tobacco, acting on the supposition that it was their intention to raise the plant. He soon observed one of them leaving the stable with a box of tobacco under each arm, and he opened fire on the pirate at once. The latter dropped the tobacco and ran down to the river, followed by another one of the gang. The watchman waited on the river side of the stable for the others to come out, but when Officer Fahey reached the spot they had not yet emerged within the range of his vision. Then the officer and the watchman investigated and found that the pirates had escaped by entering the brush back of the stable. A short search revealed the plant of stolen tobacco, about a dozen boxes, secreted in the barn.

MARTIN BAKER GETS HIS FEE.

Martin D. Baker, the attorney who brought suit against the School Trustees of East St. Louis for a large fee some time ago, has obtained a judgment for $1,250. The attorney was employed to commence suit for the recovery of about $30,000 claimed to be due the school fund from the city on saloon licenses, and did so, but the trustees compromised the case and declined to pay him his fee. He immediately sued the trustees for $1,250, and to-day the latter confessed judgment for that amount in the Circuit Court.

NOTES.

The Association of Democratic Editors of the Twenty-first Illinois Congressional District will hold a business meeting this afternoon at the Martell Hall. It is understood the object of the meeting is to formulate campaign plans.

Mrs. Charlotte Hurst, residing on Broadway near Sixth street, was badly injured by a fall at Fifth street and Converse avenue last night. While descending from the elevated sidewalk at that point she lost her balance and fell to the ground, sustaining a severe fracture of the leg. As she is 60 years of age, it is doubtful whether she will survive the injury. Mrs. Hurst is the woman who was accidentally shot about a year ago by her son-in-law, Harlem Murray, who in a drunken frenzy shot at his wife and injured his mother-in-law instead.

Thomas Tobin, a 16-year-old boy who has served several terms in the St. Louis Work-house, was arrested here last night by Detective Kinney on the charge of stealing a number of rugs from a Vandalia freight car. He was persuaded to give the police the particulars of the robbery, and finally consented to direct Detective Kinney to the place where the rugs had been hidden. The "plant" was at the old steel works on St. Clair avenue, and the rugs, together with a lot of cigars, were found there.

City Marshal Jacob Kuhn of Alton telegraphed the East St. Louis police to-day to hold a man named John Scott, who was arrested here yesterday with two sets of harness in his possession. Scott, when arrested, refused to account for his possession of the harness, but it appears to have been stolen from a citizen of Alton.

Sarah Van Houten, alias Jennie Evans, arrested last week on the charge of stealing a watch from Gus Linquist of 1223 Grand avenue in a wine-room attached to S. E. Rial's saloon at Broadway and Third street, was held for the Grand-jury to-day by Justice Wilson. She was released on bail.

William Jackson, a railroad engineer, was badly beaten in a fight last night in a saloon near Gross Park, kept by a man named Cooper. He sustained a severe wound on the head, which was dressed by Dr. Thompson. Jackson obtained a warrant against a man named Bat Leesy, who, he claimed had assaulted him. Detective Kinney arrested Leesy.

The People's party has nominated C. F. Becker for Alderman in the Second Ward and Thomas Canavan in the Third. Meetings will be held to-night to nominate candidates in the Fourth and Fifth Wards.

Jockey Burrell, who was badly hurt by a fall at the racetrack last Friday, is recovering. He is at St. Mary's Hospital.

The theft of a lot of planes and other carpenter's tools from the Smith & Cassidy planing mill in Denverside was reported to the police to-day.

A special entertainment, to consist of twenty experiments in chemistry, will be given at Association Hall to-morrow night.

Samuel Boyd of Cynthiana, Ky., a demented man, who was arrested in East St. Louis last Friday, was sent to the County Hospital at Belleville to-day.

An all-day meeting will be held at Association Hall to-morrow. Miss Jennie Smith will hold services hourly from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The forty-hour devotional service, commenced Friday at St. Henry's Church, closed yesterday. Fr. H. J. Hagen of Belleville delivered the closing sermon.

Sutherland, the Gravesend Justice of peace, who is accused of oppression in connection with the election of Nov. 5, was put on trial in Brooklyn to-day for a second time, his first, which concluded about two weeks ago, having resulted in a disagreement of the jury. SHE IS ALICE WANZER.

"Mamie" Thompson Identified as a Woman Who Figured in Court Before.

Mamie Thompson, the creole servant girl now in the custody of the police charged with stealing $2,000 worth of property from the residence of Mrs. A. S. Aloe at 3741 Pine street and Mrs. Augustus Heard, 4256 Bel avenue, was identified this morning as Alice Wanzer, who in the spring of 1889 was involved in a sensational case, in which the death of Alice Brennan, a young wife, at her furnished room house at 1504 Chestnut street was involved.

At the time John Brennan, husband of the deceased, accused Alice Wanzer of guilty knowledge of the cause of his wife's death, and also the disappearance of about $400 which had been recently drawn from the bank. Attorney Charles P. Johnson, an acquaintance of Mrs. Wanzer, was her attorney at the time, and he prosecuted Brennan for making a false affidavit before the Coroner. This caused Brennan to enter a plea of guilty in the Court of Criminal Correction and he was fined and sentenced to thirty days in jail. It was claimed that Mrs. Wanzer had administered medicine to Mrs. Brennan which caused her death, but she was exonerated by the post mortem and the Coroner's inquest in the case. Brennan is said to have been a dissolute character and that he afterwards figured as defendant in the courts of justice in this city.

FT. SMITH, Ark., March 12.—The case of James L. Owens, charged with murder, was called in the United States District Court to-day. Owens is charged with killing a clock peddler named Dempsey near Enterprise, I. T., last October. Dairymen Fight Over Swill.

Frank Werninghaus and Robert Sevester, dairymen, while quarreling about who should first be allowed to get a load of "swill" on Saturday afternoon from the Ravenswood Distillery on Madison street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth streets, blockaded traffic on the street with their wagons. They were arrested by Officer Deisner and gave bond. Werninghaus appeared in the Second District Police Court, but was discharged, as the evidence was that Sevester struck him first. Sevester failed to answer to his name and his bond was declared forfeited.

GERMAN UNITY.

Is a Fine Sounding Phrase, but a Mockery.

BISMARCK'S STRANGE UTTERANCE UPHOLDING THE THURINGIAN PRINCES.

Opposed to Prussian Sentiment, Which He Says Knows No Non-Prussian Germany—Political Condition of Alsace and Lorraine—Indications of Disunion.

Special Correspondence POST-DISPATCH.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—Nearly 1,000 inhabitants of Thuringia undertook a journey to Kissingen recently to pay their respects to the first Chancellor of the German Empire. Prince Bismarck was in remarkably good spirits and again made a political speech, dealing with German unity. Prince Bismark again hid between his lines a number of criticisms of the present Government and even of the Emperor himself. He referred several times to recent events, especially to the conference of Finance Ministers. In the course of his speech the Chancellor remarked:

"The time is past when the Frenchman thought that a war against Germany would be a kind of pleasure trip to Berlin. They know in France what power is concentrated in us."

And again:

"We must not try to alter and create something different in the place of what has been created. I refer to the officially inspired voices who call for unitarism (Prussian Unitarian State). The National Liberals of 1848 pictured to themselves such a unitarian State. They counted not upon the sentiments, hopes and thoughts of the people, nor upon the powers of dynasties, and created for themselves thereby their bitterest enemies. In creating German unity I endeavored to preserve everything that was consistent with such unity. The great ovations that I receive from all States outside of Prussia prove to me the correctness of my policy. To those Prussians, however, who are not satisfied with the present German State, and who want to put all the others into their pockets, I say: 'You are particularists. You do not know a non-Prussian Germany!' For this reason it is a source of care to me to observe in my old days how people try to undermine the constitutional foundations and work away at creating an imperial central power. Do you believe that would be a progress, if, instead of those eight reigning princes in Thuringia, there was an Imperial Governor in Erfurt? The German clings to his dynasties and the dynasties cling also to Germany. There lies a positive value, and this we must cultivate. The reproaches made to me are without foundation. If I wished to fight against the Government to gain personal power I should make a round trip through Germany; I would hold meetings everywhere, and I would minutely detail everything that weighs on my mind against the Government. After having been capable during a generation to conduct the business of the State I should think that I have now the right of every citizen to have my opinion. I do not bury my thoughts in my heart—('Ich mache ans meinem Herzen Keine Mordergrube')—and lying I have not learnt even as a diplomatist."

A HOCH FOR THURINGIA.

After saying in his opinion the Constitution had been violated by a subordinate official, viz., the Secretary of the Imperial Treasury presiding at the Financial Ministers' Conference, and stating that the Imperial Chancellor and the Emperor, according to the German Constitution, were only the executive organs of the law-making factors, viz., the Diet and the Reichstag, and after calling upon the Diets of the different States to wake up, and deploring that these did not raise their voices more powerfully, Prince Bismarck closed his speech—not with a "Hoch!" for the Emperor, but with a "Hoch!" for the Princes of the Thuringian countries.

There is a good deal of truth in Prince Bismarck's latest speech. Whether it is entirely in good taste to incite the Diets of the different States against the Government and against Prussia is an open question. It is certainly not pretty reading when the first Chancellor of the newly born German Empire says that "the present Government is guilty of trying to suppress individuality," and accuses Prussia of wishing to put all the other States into its pocket. Prince Bismarck must be aware that it does not require much to excite the feelings of dissatisfied Bavarians, Wurtembergers, Saxons and especially Guelfs and many other small nationalities who are already backbiting and bickering all the time at the Prussian preponderance. It is a proud word, and paraded on every occasion, German unity; on the streets, at the beer tables, in the Reichstag. But in reality the existence of this unity is more than problematical, and ready to be upset by any individual State, and especially likely to be much injured by such remarks as the foregoing from such a one as Prince Bismarck.

It is true that for ages the Teutonic races have been marked by a tendency to co-operation, but nothing more. The German's highest idea of enjoyment is to found in "Vereine" or societies. Whether they are for the purpose of singing, picnicking or of talking politics, it makes no difference to the German. He must belong to a "Verein" wherever he is found on the habitable globe. But no sooner is a German verein founded than its members begin to work—not unitedly and for a common purpose—but in diametrically opposite directions. The German Empire is really nothing but a "verein"—the foremost and greatest verein, but in proportion to its greatness it contains all those elements of dissensions, all the internal differences of opinion and purpose peculiar to all other German societies. History is making a desperate effort to repeat itself in the case of German unity.

ALSACE AND LORRAINE.

Not long ago Bismarck said to a deputation from Mecklenburg: "The Germans incline much more by nature to their own home union than to generality, more so as adversities of centuries have suppressed the sentiments of great generality and firm union. Particularism lies in the German's blood."

These seem strange words from the lips of the founder of the German empire. That in Alsace-Lorraine anti-Germanism continues to prevail we know as well as that the hostility to Prussian rule and German rule has not decreased in the twenty-two years that have elapsed since the annexation. The recent elections have demonstrated much to those who are not blind and who want to see. What language in addresses to electors, electioneering speeches and in newspapers! The "injustices" to which the "suppressed countries" have been subjected by the German rule for twenty-two years are complained of. Their vanished freedom is bewailed and their voices are raised against "barbarous dictatorial laws." "Heartless enemies," "murderers of oppressed liberty," "passport coercion," "suppression of the French language," "cruel police force." Such are a few of the expressions constantly in the mouths of Alsatians and Lorrainers. Out of fifteen Alsatian election districts only six voted for the military bill. The rest remained true to the French Chauvinists, Sansboeuf, Adam and others.

DISCORD AMONG THE GERMANS.

It is not in Alsace-Lorraine alone that one has to look for dissenting elements from the German unity. After all Alsace-Lorraine can only be regarded as newly added foreign countries. With the same right that Germany has for regarding the country on the left bank of the Rhine and Strassburg, that came to the French in 1681, as originally German, so should England call the country between the rivers Weser and Elbe as its own. Alsace and Lorraine up to 1870 belonged to France. Germany has recaptured it, and it is not wonderful that the conquered country plays the part of the child that leans towards its mother, and not towards its newly found father.

It is an unnatural community that through its leaders permanently evinces an earnest endeavor to form a great united whole, and as this is accomplished, unceasingly tries to sever this connection as soon as possible. Wherever one may be in Germany—in north or south, in east or west—at every festival, at every political meeting, the hollow phrase of German unity is heard, contained in every speech. But no sooner does a Prussian begin to talk politics with a Bavarian or a Oldenburger with a Wurtemburg or a Saxon with a Badenser, than these "united Germans" can be seen fighting with ferocity and desperation. Those are not always important points about which they quarrel. On the contrary. The postage stamp already forms a permanent subject of quarrel. The Bavarian brother has not given up his own postage stamp. Neither has the Wurtemberg brother. They still retain their old individual state postage stamps that circulated before the creation of the German Empire. Again, as regards currency, it must not be imagined that the people deal with mark and pfennige everywhere in Germany. Here a cigar may cost 5 kreutzer, there, so many hellers, and so on. These are trifles but if a nation wants to be united it is necessary to be united in small as well as large things. These reserved petty rights show clearly how the citizens of every individual State has a head of its own, and generally a pretty obstinate one. He would see the whole German Empire shattered rather than give up any of those beloved trifles. It was a hard fight even against the introduction of the German unit of time. There is now a schoolmaster in a Bavarian village who refuses to regulate the church clock that is under his care after the old time. That is not a personal whim, but the sentiment of the whole village, because the old time continues to be the time of that place. The establishing of universal currency measures and weights and in universal postal and telegraphic administratiuc throughout the empire was an absolute necessity, but those institutions have not brought with them a unity of the different spirits and hearts. As is often the case with a number of children in one family the same material is used for suits of clothes, thus showing that they belong to the same family, and in the same way as those children can fight amongst themselves as much as if they were strangers, so it is with the great and small States of the German Empire. The German small medium States, however, don't want to be obedient towards their parent, Prussia. It is only natural that every individual State wants to be its own master even if it is only of an area of a square mile.

THREATENING UNITY.

A real German unity can only exist if every subject will allow himself unselfishly to be absorbed in the German state. And that is impossible with elements so different from each other as the German elements composing the Empire.

There are many other dangers threatening German unity, not the least of which is the anti-Semitism that has its headquarters in the Kingdom of Saxony. The Teutons should criticise themselves and examine their own capacities and doings first before they turn brutal force against the industrious and clever Israelites. The Teuton race has to thank itself for the enormous dominance acquired by the Jews in Germany. The Germans should have commenced a long time ago to enter the arena of peaceful competition with the Jews instead of resorting to the intolerance of the Middle Ages.

The real extent of mockery that lies in the proud words paraded by all feasting Germans—"German unity"—can really be understood when one contemplates the ruptures among the different individual parties in their own camp. Not only is there a National Liberal and a German Liberal party, both ostentatiously following the same political creed, but quarreling almost about every question at issue. There are also two or three different factions contained in each of these, quarreling again among themselves about every question. The same applies to the Center and to the Conservative parties. Even the Social Democrats are not free from discord, but the true Satyr games are presented by the Anti-Semitic party. It can safely be said that there are not two Anti-Semites who can be called united in their purpose and efforts. This party has now about forty members in the Reichstag, but already three or four factions have formed themselves within it. How violently they fight against each other has been demonstrated sufficiently lately in the miserable srectacle presented by the meetings organized respectively by Ahlwardt and Stoecker.

A FINE POINT UNRECOGNIZED.

The Germans fail to value the words of the greatest German that ever sat on the throne, who said: "Let everybody get to Heaven after his own fashion." One man must be mentioned who has been trying to unite at least the church in Germany. He has done much to level many questions in dispute and to bring about a real German unity of spirit in State and church. That man is Col. Von Egidy, with his "Unity of the Christian Church." He has worked hard to gain his point, but there are great powers to be overcome. There is still the Brunswicker, the Hanoverian and the Luxemburger, who are and who will be always nagging and who will never allow the German unity idea to enter their heads. The 8th of May, when the Reichstag was dissolved, and the 15th of June, the date of the last elections, are the latest significant signs of German disunion. These two dates have truly proven that the German people are anything rather than united. The Government victory regarding the military bill has been justly called a Pyrrhus victory.

When the two opposing forces shall organize themselves for combat in the Reichstag shall begin to discuss the 'Deckungsfrage'—that is, the question of ways and means for the requirements of the army bill—approximately 200 votes will be found against 200 votes.

Can there be a truer illustration of discussion?

DRESSED IN COURT.

How a Negro Woman Undertook to Establish Her Claim to a Skirt.

"Youh knows, youh honah Jedge, dat she's got no such shape as mine. She never done be able to git dat skirt on her in the worle."

These remarks were addressed to Judge Claiborne in the Court of Criminal Correction this morning by Sadie Truehard, a young colored woman who was arraigned on a charge of stealing a skirt belonging to a negress named Mary Hall, living at 1010 North Sixth street. Both women claimed the property and identified it, Mary by means of a patch on the garment, and Sadie because of the perfect manner in which the skirt fitted her. To illustrate, she took the skirt and tried it on in the cuort-room, outside of her clothing. After adjusting the folds, she extended the toe of her right foot until it appeared beneath the skirt, and, holding the garment at both hips, she addressed the court in support of her plea that the skirt belonged to her. Appearances tended to bear out her claim, for while she was of slender waist, the claimant was a woman of stout build.

Judge Claiborne was perplexed. The Hall woman had made out a pretty good case, but Sadie's plea of a perfect fit, left a doubt, which the court finally gave her the benefit of, and discharged her. A perplexing question then arose as to what disposition to make of the skirt. While the evidence was insufficient to make out a criminal case against Sadie it was not sufficient to entitle her to the possession of the skirt. Scratching his head Judge Claiborne, after considering a few moments, remanded the custody of the skirt to Court Deputy Sheriff Tom Skidmore to make such disposition of the skirt as he saw fit. Skidmore could not decide who owned the skirt and suggested that the two women go out in the alley and fight it out and that he would give the skirt to the victor. This the women did not do and left the court-room "chewing the rag" at each other. Skidmore still has the skirt.

A Cut of $2.50.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 12.—General Passenger and Ticket Agent George T. Nicholson of the Santa Fe to-day announces a rate effective March 15, from Chicago to Kansas City, of $10. This is a cut of $2.50 and is good only west-bound, and is made because Chicago ticket brokers are makin a lower rate than $32.50 on California business.

Mr. Nicholson said at noon to-day: "The Chicago & Northwestern is evidently back of the Chicago brokers and the latter are evidently protected in the cut by the Northwestern people."

Bishop Mats Not Transferred.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—It is stated here that the report that Bishop Mats will be transferred from Denver to St. Cloud is incorrect. Neither Mgr. Satolli nor his secretary is in the city, but it is stated that the transfer has not been made, and is believed was not contemplated, the report originating with persons desirous of having Bishop Mats removed.

GREEN GOODS TALE.

A Kentucky Farmer Jumps at the Bait, Though His Wife Doubts.

TWICE LANDED FOR LARGE AMOUNTS BY SLICK MEN.

Too Cunning to Sell Tobacco Cheap, but Paid Big Prices for Pieces of Crockery and Paper—A Reformed Green Goods Man Tells of One of His Games.

Special Correspondence POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The "papers" in this "green goods" case "speak for themselves," as the saying goes. The original documents were given to a reporter of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH and the WORLD by a retired "green goods" man, who says he has reformed. His neighbors think him eminently respectable. These papers, in their sequence, show how the wife of a farmer in Kentucky tried to save him from the bait that he gulped despite her. They show how the avaricious farmer helped the "green goods" sharpers to quiet the true suspicions of the wife. They show how infinite is the confidence with which knavery can inspire greed. These letters, following one after the other, would be laughable if they were not pitiful. The farmer in Kentucky, like the "green goods" man, may have reformed. So the true name of neither is printed here.

I. THE BAIT.

A letter asking the farmer to "handle goods" and make his fortune:

DEAR SIR—You have been recommended to me as a reliable party, and one whom I can trust. Will you handle goods where you can make thousands of dollars on a very small investment? If so, you can have first say over all others, and if you don't want agency let me know and I will get some one else to take it, as your district is too good and valuable a one to lay idle. I inclose you an article which I hope you will read carefully. It will better explain matters than all I might say on the subject. You can't make money as rapidly in any other business. There is no danger in handling the goods, one of the best proofs being no one doing business with me has ever been in any trouble; on the contrary, all are making money. Lay aside all other considerations you may have and give this matter your immediate attention. As a matter of good faith on your part, I shall expect the return of this letter and paper. Then I know you mean me no harm, and that I can rely upon you as a square man. Otherwise we can have no further correspondence. My terms are as follows:

$375 will buy $5,000 in goods.
$500 will buy $8,000 in goods.
$750 will buy $15,000 in goods.

And so on at proportionate rate. Sign all your letters 65 D in place of signing your name. I will understand who it is from, and address all letters to your true friend, HENRY SCHENCK.

II. THE FEATHERS ON THE BAIT.

The Article Inclosed Purporting to Come From a Newspaper.

It was announced, a few days ago, that the Treasury Department had discovered a new silver certificate, so perfect an imitation of the original bill that it had passed through the hands of several experts and its counterfeit character had finally been discovered only by officials of the Treasury Department. Attention was called to the differences between it and the real bill, but they were so trifling that it was freely confessed that the average man would not be able to tell the two apart, even after a critical examination. It was further stated that a large number of these and other almost equally skillful counterfeits had been turned loose on the country.

The last report of the Secret Service on this subject says:

"The genuine Government notes nowadays, especially the series of 1890, are marvels of the engraver's art, aided by the wonderful geometric lathe. One would think it impossible to successfully counterfeit such work, upon looking over the complex area of lines and patterns, and yet at this moment counterfeiters are reproducing it so perfectly that the elaborate beauty of this paper money may be said to offer no protection to the public or defense against fraud."

IV. THE WIFE IS WARY.

The farmer's wife first threatens the fisher of men, and then plays to him.

CASEYVILLE, KY., March 12, 1889.

Mr. Henry Schenck:

DEAR SIR—Four years ago my Husband corresponded with some New York scoundrels without my knowledge something about a pattent which they promised thousands of dollars could be made out of in a few months so he went to meet them half way to the City Ohio Cincinnati. In three days he returned a sadder but wiser man. The scoundrels relieved him of $400 and expenses. So my dear sir you will see I have good reasons to be scared by finding a letter in his pocket about some business the nature of it I am not able to understand and that is the reason I am writing to you. I want you to give me some explanation of it. Your intention may be good and fair but I will believe to the contrary till I hear from you. I am sorry to say I am not in possession of that letter because I could take it to some town laver or preacher and they would tell me all about it. The old man got it before I could show it to anyone to ask about it I only saved the address. Now, sir, I am open with you and expect the same from you. Be kind enough and inform me all about what is going on between you and my husband. Can make $1,000 a month. That is about the same the scoundrels promised four years ago; so, dear sir, please be honest with me and let me knew in a reasonable time—twenty or thirty days—but if I don't get an answer in that time I will write to my Bishop in New York. Thanks to God, I have your address, and he will find you and if anything is wrong he will expose you.

From your obedient servant, who prays you not lead my husband into temptation.

V. "WHAT A DAM FOOL SHE IS."

The farmer will drug his wife if necessary to escape her.

VI.—A SOP TO THE WIFE.

The swindlers offer a present and an explanation:

NEW YORK, March 29, 1889.

Respected Madam:

I have been away from home on business or I should have answered your letter ere this. Am at a loss to know what you mean by addressing me in the manner you do, referring to scoundrels and leading your husband into temptation. You ask me to inform you what is going on between us and all about it. Well, to be truthful with you and to gratify your wish, I am engaged in getting up a series of works which when completed will consist of three volumes treating upon the principal resources of this country, and paying particular attention to the agricultural line. I intend having it complete in about three months, and if you have no objection, will, when finished, forward you a copy of the same, nicely bound. My object in writing to your husband and others as well, was to place it in prominent people's hands throughout the country, thereby deriving larger profits from its sale and having control of it myself rather than a publishing house. I hope this explanation is satisfactory. Respectfully yours, HENRY SCHENCK.

VII. A BURDEN FROM HER MIND.

She is relieved, yet the good wife fears her husband may be jealous.

CASEYVILLE, KY., April 7, 1889.

Mr. Henry Schenck, New York:

DEAR SIR—Your long looked for letter received and I am happy to say relieved my mind of a heavy burden, and I ask a thousand pardons for addressing you in the manner I did. But, my dear sir, if you only knew the old man as I do you would not blame me for a moment. I am very much obliged to you for the flattering compliment about the books. I hope you will not forget me in due time, when I will feel highly complimented. I wish you lived in Ky., and not so far away, so myself as well as my daughter could show you some gratitude by sending you or your family some flowers, that is, if you have a family, which I doubt, as I never saw a book man in my life that had a family. But should you ever pass this way I hope I may have the pleasure of your company. I hope to hear from you soon, and hope you will remember me when the books are completed, which I hope will be soon.

P. S.—Please don't mention to my husband about our correspondence with each other, as he is very sensitive in that way. I am twenty-two years his junior.

VIII.—THE EXPRESS ROBBED HIM.

Robbed, but 65 D Does Not Blame His Best Friend.

CASEYVILLE, KY., May 18.

Mr. Henry Schenck:

A SECOND TIME.

"Read the indorsement on the back of that last letter?" said the reformed "green goods" man.

"Worked the second time for $700."

"That's true," exclaimed the "green goods" man. "That fellow came back! What do you think of that?"

And the "green goods" man laughed as if he had never reformed.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

Gold Standard Now Obsolete—Talk of a New Theater.

One of the best indications of the return of confidence among the moneyed men of the country and the consequent loosening up of the money market is the fact that leases and deeds of trust, which a year ago mostly stipulated that payment should be made in gold coin, are now drawn as a rule without this provision.

When the financial depression was at its height, when the capitalists and money-lenders were hoarding their wealth in safe deposit boxes and the dread of a wild cat legal tender had demoralized the credit system, it became the general custom throughout the country to provide even in short-term leases that they must be payable in gold coin of a standard fineness if the owner thereof so demanded. This had a further tendency to bear gold and aid in the depreciation of silver.

Now, in St. Louis at least, this practice has ceased. As confidence returned and money became more plentiful the loan men found that the borrowers would not consent to any such an arrangement, and this, coupled with the dying out of the furor against silver to a large extent, resulted in the almost entire dropping of the practice.

Joseph Brown, Chief Clerk in Recorder of Deeds Hobbs' office, says that not one paper now has this stipulation to where twenty had it eight or ten months ago.

The real estate men in St. Louis, while as a rule disapproving this form of agreement, were obliged to follow it when acting as the agents for the men with money. Judge John H. Terry of Terry Bros. admitted that the practice had been quite general during the hard times, but also corroborated the statement of Clerk Brown that it had practically ceased.

"It was a bad thing," he said, "because it unsettled business more than ever. If a man bought a piece of property for $10,000 and paid $2,000 down with the promise to pay the rest at the expiration, of say ten years, and gave a deed of trust with this stipulation, he did not know what he was contracting to pay. If gold went to a premium he would be forced to pay more than his property was really worth.

"Of course, the defense of the lender was that the legal tender of the country might depreciate so that he would not get value received. It was bad business all around, but, happily, it is over now, for confidence is once more restored."

This custom originated in 1876, about the time of the passage of the act abolishing the trade dollar as legal tender. It was used at that time by Easterners who were loaning a great deal to the West. It never assumed great proportions until last year.

ANOTHER THEATER.

Local Capitalists Said to Have an Option on a Site.

There are prospects of St. Louis soon having another theater in the down-town district. For some time past some local capitalists have been looking for a site, and it was reported this morning that they had secured an option on a piece of property.

The plans of Mr. T. L. Johnson with reference to the old High School property at Fifteenth and Olive streets are not fully known, and it may be that he will also place a first-class theater in the new building he is to erect on that site.

Sewers are to be constructed in Dundee place west of Grand avenue on Blain, Folsom, Park and McRee avenues. The real estate in this section will be greatly benefited by the improvement.

The owners of Dover place let a contract this morning for the grading and making of the street through their property, from Virginia to Grand avenues.

Pandjiris stated that he purchased the saloon Marcagi formerly owned at Wells Station, on the St. Louis & Suburban road, and when it was sold out by a constable on Feb. 19 Pandjiris alleges that yesterday Marcagi went to the saloon, threw out the barkeeper and took about $7 from the cash drawer.

HAS A SLOW HEART.

A Michigan Man Who Works Daily With Only Forty Beats Per Minute.

The normal action of the human heart is from seventy to eighty beats a minute, and physicians consider that when a patient's heart beats as slowly as forty, it is the prelude of immediate death. There are exceptions to all rules, and it is said that Thomas Lyons of Benton, Mich., is a notable exception to this. He is 56 years old, of dropsical tendency, and weighs 200 pounds. He was taken with dizzy spells about two years ago. His pulse ran down to sixty, and everybody thought he was going to die. When physicians came from Chicago they found him with a forty-minute pulse, which soon sank to thirty-six and thirty-four. There seemed to be no hope for Lyons, who arranged his temporal affairs and prepared for the worst. Electrical currents were applied, but the pulse only sank lower, reaching thirty. All sorts of restoratives were applied. They seemed to have the opposite effect. Further down sank the pulse to twenty-eight, twenty-four, twenty-one, twenty, even to eighteen, and yet all this time Mr. Lyons was, to all appearances, strong and well. For over a year now he has been in this condition, his pulse wavering between eighteen and twenty-two, and he has been at work almost every day, in his shop. He said to-day that he expected to live several minutes after he is dead, from the fact that his heart is getting so low that its work will be done before he is notified.

Strangely Stricken.

Hutchinson (Kan.) Special.

A strange poisoning occurred here. Mrs. John Hoffman, hearing her canary making a fluttering noise in an adjoining room, went to investigate the cause. She immediately fainted in a dead swoon. Her mother followed her and was likewise affected. A girl ran for a neighbor lady, who went in, and was also affected in the same manner. They all vomited profusely. Two doctors were soon on the scene, and with great effort resuscitated the three, although becoming violently sick themselves. There is no cause assigned, and the matter is a mystery, the doctors not being able to risk an opinion.

From now on, all men notified to report for work at Forest Park are instructed to carry with them shovels or picks. The supply of tools has been exhausted and it is necessary that the laborers should furnish their own implements.

All the available teams applying on the lake grounds this morning were engaged. More will be put on to-morrow.

The favorable weather will now bring about the employment of the full force possible to the lake work.

To-day is pay day at the Lake. At the noon hour 665 laborers were paid off, that number being on last week's pay-roll. The total amount of the pay-roll was $1,606.10.

Grain.

Wheat—After a Government report on farmers' reserves that was undeniably bearish, the summing up of market evidence on this morning's curb was decidedly in favor of the selling side. So when the opening bell tapped the pit was full of would-be sellers and first sales were at ⅛c decline from where the market ended Saturday. But the selling desire suddenly vanished when Chicago turned and shot up, and this market followed very rapidly, reacting ⅜c. This spurt of strength lasted rather longer than the early depression, but finally went out of sight and subsequently the market was weak and declined 1⅛c. It did not rally more than ⅛c and at close had sellers 1⅛c below yesterday. The Government report showing 114,000 bu in farmers' hands, digested over Sunday, did not lose any of its bearish character, and the trade came down in a selling humor. The fine spring weather in this section they found was general in winter wheat regions, and no signs of an unfavorable change on the weather map, which in itself was enough to put traders strongly on the short side, especially as reports from the crop were most encouraging. Then the cables were not of the right sort to offset the generally depressing influences, foreign markets being quiet, though not quotably lower, and the amount afloat showing 2,380,000 bu increase. All these tended to increase the bearish feeling, and there was quite a selling flurry at the opening. A sudden and sharp reaction in Chicago changed the conditions here, this market rallying quickly in sympathy, though not long maintained. Receipts were fair, though the 462,000 bu in at twelve primary points were nearly 100,000 bu less than last Monday, and the clearances from five ports amounted to 40,500 pkgs flour and 211,500 bu wheat. The visible decrease of 962,000 bu was a disappointment (though one year ago it increased [illegible] bu) and started domestic markets down again. Nor did the foreign cables afford any relief. Beerbohm reported Paris ⅛c higher, but Liverpool ¼@½d lower and other cables stated Paris was unchanged and Berlin and Antwerp ¼ and ⅛c lower respectively. Indian shipments for last week were reported as 380,000 bu, an increase of 160,000 bu over the week before, and 220,000 bu larger than same week last year, and the English visible was estimated to have decreased only 420,000 bu. Everything conspired to depress domestic markets and they became very weak. A correction of 100,000 bu in Boston's stock increased the visible decrease to 1,062,000 bu, but did not strengthen the tone materially. The large cash business, however, did firm up the business somewhat.

FUTURES—May opened at 55⅜c and then sold up to 56⅛c, after which it went off to 55⅝@⅞c, to 55⅞c, on call offered at 56c and 55⅞c bid, then sold at 55¾@⅞c, down to 55¼c to 55⅜@½c to 55⅛c to 55⅜c to 55¼@⅜c, and sellers at latter price at close. July opened at 57⅜c, sold up to 58c, and then went off to 56⅞c, which was bid at close.

SPOT GRADES—Lower, but the decline brought out heavy willing buying, 75,000 bu No 2 red selling to go South and 165,000 bu taken by local and near-by mills. These sales were at 2c under May and ranged from 54c on call to 53¼c afterwards. No 3 red was salable in United at 52c, No 4 winter at 50c, rejected at 45c and No 2 hard winter at 51½c. A trade in 200,000 bu No 2 red to go East missed fire by the smallest of margins and is still pending.

Sales: No 2 red—3 cars in United at 54c, 240,000 bu in do p t. No 3 red—1 car in C "B" and 1 in United at 52c. No 2 spring—1 car in C "B" at 50c.

SAMPLES—Received, 1,807 sks and 14 cars local, 2 cars through. Lower and quiet. Offerings were light and met with a very fair sort of a demand at the reduced prices. Sales: Red winter —62 sks musty at 49c, 172 sks No 4 at 50c, 211 No 3 at 53c, 478 choice at 54c, 464 at 54c del, 300 on p t. On trk—1 car ungraded at 52c. In elevator—1 car No 4 in Crown at 51c.

Corn—This market was just as strong as wheat was weak this morning, and it did not take long for the May option to sell ⅜@½c higher, after opening where it closed last Saturday. The Government report was construed as bullish, it reporting 589,000,000 bu in farmers' hands, but only 360,000,000 bu held in the distributive States. Receipts were much larger, though out of the 294 cars in here only 58 cars were local, and the weather more favorable for country hauling. Foreign markets were firm and Liverpool up 1d, the clearances from 5 ports 230,000 bu, and the amount afloat only increased 240,000 bu. The final decline in wheat pulled corn down and it sold off ⅛c, but there was not much for sale and at close there were buyers at the price bid late Saturday.

FUTURES—May opened at 34⅝@¾c, sold up to 35⅛c and down to 34⅝c, closing at 34⅝@¾ bid. July sold at 35½ to 35⅞c, and at close 35⅝c asked. March offered at 34¾c, no bid. No 2 white for May sold at 36⅜@½c and for more 36⅝c bid, but later sold at 36¼@⅜c.

SPOT GRADES—Strength was still prominent in the cash market, and No 2 and white grades were in demand, but No 3 apparently not wanted—could be bought late at 33⅝c, though that bid on call for St L. No 2 was salable in F and United at 34⅝c and latter held at May price. No 2 white sold E side at 35¼c, and later 35⅜c bid for latter, 35⅝c for this side, 35⅜c for C. No 3 do sold this side at 34⅜c.

Sales: No 2—6 cars and 5,000 bu at 34⅝c, 3 cars in C "B" at 34⅜c. No 2 white—1 car East Side at 35¼c. No 3 white—1 car in St. L at 34⅜c.

SAMPLES—Scarce and firm. Good white was salable to millers at 36½c. Sale: 250 sks white p t; skd lots on orders, 41@42c.

Oats—Speculation was opened up in July to-day, the fine weather and excellent reports on the progress of seeding causing some selling at 28c to 27¾c, latter ⅛c below the price bid Saturday. The May option was stronger and 31¼c bid, without any offered.

SPOT GRADES—No 2 offered regular at 32¼c, bid 31½c; bid 30c for No 3 regular, 33½c for No 3 white in F and none offered.

SAMPLES—Received, 26 cars. The offerings were small. For local account there was a good demand, but nothing was wanted by order buyers. Prices were steady, and the little on sale sold early. No 2 brought 32c track and elevator. No No 3 offering. No 3 white, of which there was more on sale than any other grade, sold at 33@33½c, according to the quality of the oats. No offerings or sales of No 2 white. Sales were as follows:

Butter and Cheese.

Butter—The market was in good shape on the fancy qualities of creamery, which are keeping well sold up, and the second grades of creamery have also been selling to little better advantage, but all other descriptions have failed to share in the better feeling and continue to sell very slowly.

Dressed Poultry—There was no market for dressed poultry, as the weather was too warm. In fact, all the large operators are neglecting dressed stock altogether, and the season is about over. No prices can be given, but it is certain that dressed stock would bring very little more than live.

Game—Receipts light and about the only arrivals that were in anything like good condition were the shipments that were iced. In icing consignments, shippers should be careful to have the birds arrive dry, as wet offerings have to be discounted 25c per dozen, even when sweet, in order to sell. Demand for sweet offerings about equal to supply. We quote: Choice ducks—Mallards, drawn, $2; undrawn, $2.50; teal, $1.50; mixed and wood, $1. Pigeons and squabs, $1.25. Snipe, $1.50. Commercial Notes.

Weather conditions continue to decidedly favor crop conditions.

New Orleans cleared Saturday for Havre 40,000 bu wheat and 96,000 bu corn.

Stocks of wheat at lake ports in Manitoba last week were 2,072,000 bu, where they were 3,085,000 bu the year before.

Chicago advices that strait navigation is now open, the earliest in ten years. There is afloat in Chicago harbor over 1,200,000 bu wheat and 7,000,000 bu corn.

The decline in wheat this morning allowed an order for 60,000 bu No 2 red wheat to be filled for a Southern mill. This order has been on file here for nearly a week.

It would not be unreasonable to look for a higher wheat market on this latest Government report, it is so bearish, as prices went down on all those bullish Government crop reports of last year.

There must have been large shipments last week to Europe from other countries besides the United States, or else United Kingdom were extremely small to allow of the increase of nearly 2,400,000 bu on ocean passage.

Showers have occurred along the Atlantic Coast and quite generally in the Southern States; fair weather in all other sections. The temperature is unusually uniform in the central valleys, the East and North. Forecast: Fair, but with increasing cloudiness; warmer.

New Zealand mail advices state that the surplus of wheat for export will be greatly diminished owing to the decrease in the acreage and the probable certainty of a small yield. The new crop oats promised well, but stocks were smaller than for a long time past.

Seeding operations have been under way for some time in south Dakota. Considerable ground has been sown, as the ground has been dry and easily worked and farmers have taken advantage of these favorable conditions. Seeding in some counties has been earlier this year than ever before.

A Red River Valley farmer estimates the cost of raising a bu of wheat in 1893, with twelve bu yielded, to be 56c. This was raised on a farm of 725 acres, 500 of which were in wheat, 100 reserved for hay and pasture and 125 summer-fallowed. The above cost of 56c does not allow anything for $10,000 invested in land, stock, tools, buildings, etc.

The mail advices from England state that the weather has been very favorable for the preparation of the land for wheat seeding and that farmers are availing themselves of the opportunity to put their seed under the ground. It is the general idea that the wheat acreage in England will be larger this year than it was last year.

Serious complaints come from Roumania as to the unfavorable nature of the weather and the effect of continued frosts on ground uncovered by snow. It is said to have done more or less serious harm to the growing crops. Business remains very dull. There has been some demand from Spain and a couple of corn cargoes sold to that country realized prices above these ruling on the English market, but otherwise there is very little passing.

March is usually a very trying month on the winter wheat plant, and crop-scares are of frequent occurrence. This year, however, the contrary so far seems to be the case. With the exception of a fear that some damage has been done in Russia, by a lack of snow to sufficiently protect the plant, little talk of damage is heard. The condition of winter wheat in this country is generally summed up as favorable. In California the prospects are said to be for an average yield. In Washington the ground is reported as in good condition and wet down several feet which is regarded as giving good promise for a large crop. In England the crops are reported as doing well. The same is said to be the case in France. In Germany the ground is protected by snow. In Hungary spring sowings have commenced with no damage done yet to fall sown wheat. In Kansas reports are indicative of a large yield. The weather in this country is mild and favorable. A sudden change is liable to occur at any time, however, and upset present calculations.—Minneapolis Market Record.

As the latest Government report on farmers' reserves is supposed to have been obtained through actual returns from the department's correspondents throughout the country and as these correspondents made returns only of wheat actually in farmers' hands, then in the 114,000,000 bu reported there is not included stocks in private city warehouses and in country stocks. If this is the case, the 114,000,000 bu in farmers' hands and the 77,000,000 bu in the visible by no means represents the actual amount of wheat held in this country.

A St. Louis commission-house last week sent out inquiries to their Kansas correspondents regarding the wheat crop's condition and prospects. The answers now coming in are generally favorable, speaking well of the plant's present condition, but some of it is in a delicate condition, being almost too forward in growth for the season of the year. The only other complaint is that the earth has been blown away from the roots by high winds in some sections.

Concerted buying by Armour, Cudahy and other big Chicago traders was given as the cause for the quick recovery in wheat this morning. They must have caught the crowd short on the Government.

Some Liverpool cables intimate that stocks of wheat and flour are increasing once more.

Henry Vogelsang has returned from an extended visit to the Pacific Coast.

NEW YORK.—Bar silver in London is quoted today at 27⅝, which is an advance of 1-16; silver in New York is quoted at 60⅜.

The stock market opened with a disposition to buy stocks, especially Sugar, Chicago Gas and Missouri Pacific. The buying of Chicago Gas is pretty good. Advance in other stocks is professional. The earnings of the Wabash road for the first week of March decreased $39,000.

The earnings of the Missouri Pacific for the first week of March decreased $78,000, and from the 1st of Jan to date decreased $932,000.

The bullish sentiment still prevails with no signs if its having lost the power. Missouri Pacific is very active and strong on talk of earnings will show up favorably. The annual report of the company is expected to show a surplus earned over fixed charges of about $110,000, also will show a net increase for December. Boston houses were the principal buyers of Missouri Pacific.

It is claimed by parties believed to be in a position to get reliable news that Northwestern Elevator Stocks are really $11,000,000 against public estimates of $5,500,000.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The stock market opened strong with an advance of ⅛@1½, well distributed throughout the list, the latter figure on Sugar, which shortly afterwards scored an additional advance of ⅛. Chicago Gas and Missouri Pacific also moved up ¼. Distilling ⅝, of which ½ was soon lost, Burlington ¼, Rock Island, General Electric and Omaha each ⅛, and a smaller fraction in the other issues.

A reaction set in shortly after 10:15 o'clock, Sugar leading the downward movement with a loss of ⅝ per cent. Tobacco receding ¾, Cotton Oil ½, and the rest of the active list ⅛@¼ per cent. Shares which are usually inactive were strong and advanced, C., C., C. & St. Louis, 1 per cent; Delaware & Hudson, ¼, and Kansas & Texas preferred, Pacific Mail and Sugar. A little later, under a moderate buying, Lake Shore moved up 1 per cent; Rock Island and Chesapeake & Ohio, ⅛; Burlington & Quincy, Atchison, Chicago Gas and Union Pacific, ¼; Missouri Pacific ⅝ and Sugar ⅜.

Speculation became weak shortly after 11 o'clock and prices declined ⅛@1½ per cent, the latter for Sugar, which was heavily pressed for sale. Missouri Pacific also sold freely and reacted ⅝ per cent. Consolidated Gas declined ¾ and Chicago Gas ⅛. In exception to this downward movement, Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred rose 1 per cent, Sugar preferred advanced 1, and lost ⅝ per cent. St. Paul & Omaha sold up ⅝ and reacted ⅜. Subsequently Sugar rallied ⅞ for the common and ⅝ for the preferred, and Missouri Pacific recovered ⅜. At noon, on a market generally firm, Sugar receded ⅝ per cent.

The Union Depot Street Railroad Company's Straight 25-Year 6 Per Cent Gold Bonds

Afford banks a rare opportunity to supply themselves with a choice investment bearing a higher rate of interest than is usually offered, when so abundantly secured.

Many of our local banks and trust companies have purchased these Bonds to hold against their time deposits. Investors, guardians and executors of estates would do well to inquire into the merits of these securities before purchasing real estate notes or other bonds.

I am selling them at 105 and interest which will pay on the amount invested over 5½ per cent.

United States Government 2s, 4s and 5s will be accepted at the full market rate in payment of purchases; also North Missouri Railroad Company's 7s, due July, 1895, or any of the issues of St. Louis City bonds.

These straight 25-year 6 per cent gold bonds are issued in redemption of the old bonds called March 2, 1894. I have still on hand and for sale $250,000 of them. When these have passed into the hands of investors the market value will no doubt advance to 114, at which price they will pay 5 per cent on the investment.

Gross receipts for nine months ending December 31, 1893....... $777,343 59
Operating and all other expenses, including interest....... 529,881 81

Net gain....... $247,461 78

MRS. BLOOD'S CASE.

A Continuance Taken on Account of the Absence of Witnesses.

The case of Mrs. Kate C. Blood, late Secretary of the Common Sense Building and Loan Association, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was docketed in the Criminal Court this morning, but was again continued on account of the absence of three important witnesses. G. N. Heineburger, G. Green and B. C. Patterson were the witnesses who failed to answer their names when called. The first named, however, put in an appearance just in time to escape an attachment. An alias was issued against each of the other two.

The case was reset for Friday morning next, March 16, against the protests of the defendant's attorney, who claimed that he could not get ready for trial in that time.

THE SHIP CANAL.

Most Feasible Route From the Lake to the River to Be Determined.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 12.—The Chamber of Commerce by unanimous vote this morning again endorsed the important proposed ship canal from Lake Superior to the Mississippi River, calling on the Northwestern States to rally to the support of what would be a great benefit to the business of the entire West. Government engineers have pronounced the scheme entirely practicable and it is now proposed simply to secure an appropriation of $10,000 to determine the most feasible route.

California Cheap Ride.

The Frisco Santa Fe System have made heavy reduction in passenger rates to California and other far West territory affected. For example: St. Louis to California points, first-class, one way, $27.50; round trip, $47.50. Remember that the great Santa Fe System, with its own rails between St. Louis and the Pacific Coast, is the most reliable through line. Rates are always as low and lower than by any other line. For full particulars call upon or address Ticket Agent, 101 North Broadway or Union Depot, St. Louis, Mo.

Opposes God in the Constitution.

Rev. John Snyder preached a very strong sermon yesterday at the Church of the Messiah on the subject of "God in the Constitution." He argued against the joint resolution introduced by Mr. Frye of Maine into the United States Senate and Mr. Morse of Massachusetts into the House of Representatives to have acknowledgment of God inserted into the National Constitution after the preamble. He held that the effect of such an attempt would be to drive a large number of people who held rational views of religion and government over to the side who would dispense with religion altogether, as they would feel that their religious liberties were endangered. It was not the non-believers and atheists who had passed the iniquitous laws of which this Government should feel ashamed, but it was the Christians. Every move for the toleration and improvement of the penal laws found enthusiastic support among the men and women who are termed infidels and unbelievers. If the proposed amendment was adopted it would be followed by all sorts of bigoted legislation and by the most bitter religious strife.

LILIUOKALANI.

The Patience of Her People and Their Prospects.

NEW YORK, March 12.—In an interview with x-Queen Liliuokalani at Honolulu, Feb. 28, she said she wished it distinctly denied that, as she said had been widely published, her interest in the restoration of the monarchy was wholly personal.

"Of course," she continued, "we have naturally a deep personal interest at stake, but you may say that we are deeply sorry on account of our patient native people, many of whom have lost employment by the overthrow. If anything grieves us sorely, more sorely than our own annoyance, it is their distress. Their devotion has been so marked during our trouble that we are most grateful. They are, of course, very anxious about their liberties, for I assure you that Hawaiians love their country. I may say I believe they are as patriotic as any people in the world. Our subjects are probably more patient than any other people in the world, and for that matter we have counseled them to be peaceful and await results."

She said she loved the American people and American Government, but believed that there was as much liberty in Hawaii under monarchy as in the United States.

"People prospered under the monarchy and tramps were unknown," said Liliuokalani. "The poor were not numerous in our country and many white men made fortunes under the old conditions. By the way, there are some serious problems in your Government, as in all civilized countries to-day. I read that there are millions of idle and desperate hungry men hunting for employment in other civilized countries. We are very sorry to see so many of them coming to these islands, and we wish you would warn them that there is nothing for them to do here."
